AS ONE MAN.

Pomona People will Defend Their Homes.

Another Mass Meeting to Discuss Clouded Land Titles.

Tonner and Nichols Come in for a Merciless Scolding.

An Agreement by Which a Combined Effort will be Made to Fight the Case in Court without Delay.

By Telegraph to The Times.

POMONA, Nov. 14.—[Special.] That the interest in the question of the clouded land titles remains unabated was clearly shown by the very large and enthusiastic mass meeting assembled tonight at the call of the Executive Committee. The Operahouse was crowded when the meeting was called to order at 7:30 o'clock by Chairman Brown.

J. E. Packard read an agreement by a large number of property owners, upon which legal proceedings have begun. A number of the citizens whose property was affected by this cloud had met at his house, and entered into an agreement and passed a resolution in which each one would give, when called upon, a sum equal to $2.50 per acre to carry on legal proceedings in fighting the case. About 1100 acres were secured at once, and the first call of $1 per acre was made. A committee had been appointed to carry forward the work for these property owners, and it had gone to Los Angeles and secured the services of Judge Bicknell to fight the case. E. A. Meserve was employed to assist Judge Bicknell in compiling a statement of the decisions bearing upon the case. They had decided to reopen the old Mound City Land and Water Association cases. This affects the whole of the rancho San José. Those who have obtained quiet-claims from Tonner are therefore no better off than those who refused to take them and began the fight. By taking up this case the foundation of the matter is reached at once, and when settled all the titles will be perfectly clear. By the complaint filed by Judge Bicknell in opening this suit, their lands set aside to the several owners now occupying the land, and all owning land on the Palomares tract, are invited to become parties to the suit that they may have their lands thus set aside and the titles cleared. The case will probably be decided within sixty days, and the cost of the suit will be less than is already pledged. Those becoming parties to the suit would be asked to subscribe pro rata according to the number of acres represented.

On behalf of the Executive Committee, Fred J. Smith said that some of them had been in Los Angeles to see what our friends were doing in the matter, and found that they had been very busy at work on the case; that subpoenas had been issued and the matter was well under way.

"Now," continued Smith, "a word about the letter of the doctor. When the first move was made by the citizens neither Tonner nor Nichols would give a satisfactory statement. Tonner promised to do so, but did not. The doctor appeared, but gave no satisfaction. But in his letter he takes a little different ground and explains that he was moved by consideration for his fellow men. How little consideration he has for his fellow men his acts show. He evidently has two sides to his character for in his home life he is said to be lovable and kind." Mr. Smith recited the trials of a friend who fell into the clutches of Dr. Nichols and was ruined by his avarice and merciless dealings. Proceeding he said: "When an attempt is made to take our homes, we have a right to fight for them; we have a right to keep them out of the clutches of such a man as B. S. Nichols. It will not do to permit the artesian belt to come into the hands of such a man."

A German who has been here for about a year said that he had become almost discouraged by the way things had gone, but this movement of the people made him glad that he was a citizen of Pomona, when they stood shoulder to shoulder for their rights.

Another said that to see all sorts and conditions of men thus united for the good of all made him feel good all over. So we must all stand for the right that we may each of us feel good all over. [Applause.]

Hon. William O'Connor said: "Nick is dead and buried. [Applause.] Some of you thought Pat was drunk down in Los Angeles, but he is not. He is putting up a scheme on you now." It is said that a Frank Palomares talks in a different tone from that used when he was here. Why? Because he has seen Mr. Tonner, and Tonner would have gone, but this movement of the people made him glad that he was a citizen of Pomona, when they stood shoulder to shoulder for their rights.

has considered it a swindle; yet neither has taken a step to right the wrong. While the Doctor admits that he made a mistake in going in with Tonner, he does nothing in restitution. When they have used their strength to set things right, then let them make their explanations. The following resolution was offered by Dr. Brown and carried, amid great applause, by a unanimous vote.

Resolved, that this meeting held in the interest of the people, considers the published statement of Dr. B. S. Nichols very inadequate to meet the demands of an outraged and indignant public sentiment, and calls upon him to make restitution for the wrong he has done the Pomona Valley.

Maj. Driftel said that he was one whose land was clouded or had been decided away by Tonner, and he now had no place to lay his head. Tonner had downed a number of men, and now he and Nichols were trying to down us all. But we will not be downed. We are going to clear everything all up [applause] and then give these men and their henchmen to understand that we don't want them to live among us, that we are a little too good for them. [Applause.]

J. E. Packard said: "Tonner and his friends say we have made a mistake; his lawyer says we have made a mistake. They want to settle this quietly. So do we want to settle it quietly, but we want to settle it right. We are all together in this, and it will be settled right."

The meeting then adjourned to assemble again Thursday night.

MAY RESUME.

Hopeful View of the San Diego Bank Failure.

The Examiner Takes Charge, but will Say Nothing Until He Has Made His Report to the Washington Authorities.

By Telegraph to The Times.

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 14.—[By The Associated Press.] The local financial situation which was made undeniably critical by the temporary suspension of the California National Bank on Thursday, is decidedly improving. The day has been devoid of excitement, and the other banks and business houses continue business as usual. The offers of help from Los Angeles are greatly appreciated, but there has been no emergency yet which makes their acceptance necessary. The following notice was placed on the doors of the California Bank this morning:

By direction of the Comptroller of the Currency I have this day assumed charge of the affairs of the California National Bank of San Diego. W. H. CHAMBERLAIN, National Bank Examiner.

There was a meeting of the stockholders this afternoon and a committee was appointed to confer with the bank examiner. The latter, however, says that he cannot make any statement for publication until his report goes to Washington.

George V. Sims, managing director of the Lombard Trust Company of London, who is here to make investments, and who had expressed his willingness to advance ample funds to the crippled bank, had a conference with the bank examiner today, the result of which is understood to have been satisfactory, and there is tonight a very general feeling, not only that the depositors will be paid in full, but that the bank will resume business without further delay than is necessary to permit the arrangements of all preliminaries. Mr. Sims leaves for New York Sunday morning.

The Cheyenne Failure.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Lacey, Comptroller of the Currency, has instructed the bank examiners to take charge of the Cheyenne National Bank at Cheyenne, Wyo., and the California National Bank of San Diego, Cal., both of which failed during the week. Lacey says he does not know whether the report that Senator Sherman is a stockholder in the Cheyenne bank is true or not.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 14.—The liabilities of the Cheyenne National Bank are $118,000 with assets twice that amount, and such men as John Sherman and John Jay Knox holding blocks of stock. The Cheyenne National Bank will liquidate in the fall. The only bad feature is that the calling in of loans by the Examiner or receiver will put a cramp on some local concerns.

THE BLIND BOSS.

Buckley Will Tarry in Montreal till the Claude Bell by.

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—[By The Associated Press.] Chris Buckley, the well-known blind political leader of San Francisco, who is under indictment in that city, charged with having received money for obtaining the passage of certain measures by a former Board of Supervisors, has established himself in this city apparently for the winter. Buckley was seen at his home today, and gave a denial to the report that he was going to Europe, saying that he was perfectly satisfied where he was.

When asked as to the cause of the excitement about his leaving the Pacific Coast, he said that he had come away acting under his physician's orders. He already had tried different parts of Europe, and now was recommended to try a dry cold climate. If, when winter sets in, he is not benefited, he will go home. The grand jury, he said, was an illegal one and controlled by his political enemies, and when they went out of power in January he would have no further annoyance. There was no need to extradite him, he would go back in good time, and if necessary he would tell all he knew of the transactions in which he had taken part.

He added, that when he began talking his enemies would not be so anxious to hear his story.

Germans Leaving Russia.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov. 14.—A large number of German colonists located along the Volga River are discontented with the condition prevailing in Russia, and many have determined to give up their holdings and leave the country. Many are going to the United States. The emigrants are thrifty and industrious and a majority of them are fairly well to do.

BAIRD TALKS.

The Fresno Boomer Denies Crookedness.

And Thinks He will be Able to Answer All Charges.

Meanwhile More Frauds and Forgeries are Coming to Light.

The Consolidated Bank of Elsinore Not Injured in Any Way by the Doings of the Fresno Boomer.

By Telegraph to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—[By The Associated Press.] W. F. Baird spent the forenoon today in the office of the Chief of Police, where a number of friends called upon him and inquired if they could be of service to him. Baird was detained in custody as a prisoner, en route to Madera, and was spared the humiliation of being placed behind the bars.

A detective who had been in Baird's company last night for a number of hours said today: "If Baird is guilty of a fraction of the charges made against him, he will have a hard job to clear himself. I consider him, however, one of the smoothest articles I have ever met."

When Baird was seen today he said: "I do not know who has sworn out a warrant for my arrest and cannot imagine who could have done so. If I knew the party I am positive that matters could be easily and satisfactorily arranged with him, as I am certain my arrest grew out of a trivial cause. According to dispatches from Fresno and Madera published this morning, I am accused of embezzlement and overissuing stock. I defy any man to show that my conduct has ever been anything else than open and above board. In regard to the charges of making false statements, I can only say that the bank commissioners and other interested parties thoroughly investigated the reports and never found fault or demanded an explanation, except on one occasion, when there was an item that they did not clearly comprehend, and a fuller report was asked for and granted."

MORE FORGERIES AND FRAUDS.

MADERA, Nov. 14.—W. F. Baird's arrest was decided upon yesterday after consultation with the bank's attorney, Judge Short, who came up from Fresno. Baird is charged with forging Return Robert's name as president of the Bank of Madera, 200 shares of stock which, it is stated, he acknowledged were forgeries. Baird also forged Robert's name to other stock which will aggregate 400 shares and more, and that as more books are examined more forgeries and frauds are discovered. A consignment on the early morning train for San Francisco, where Baird is endeavoring to get out on habeas corpus.

ELSNORE BANK NOT HURT.

ELSNORE, Nov. 14.—[Special.] W. F. Baird has had no connection with the Consolidated Bank of Elsinore for nearly two years.

The actions of W. F. Baird do not affect the bank in any particular.

BAIRD'S DENIALS CAUSE A SMILE.

FRESNO, Nov. 14.—The telegraphic accounts published here this morning that W. F. Baird positively denies being guilty of forgery and embezzlement in connection with the Bank of Madera, caused a smile at the Fresno office of the Examiner. Baird's denials have been discovered almost every hour for the past two days. The Bank of Madera, as now organized, has the confidence of the business men of this city, and Madera and its deposits are rapidly increasing.

Central American Revolutionists.

CITY OF MEXICO, Nov. 14.—Dispatches from Guatemala say that Barrillas is sending troops to the north from Quetzaltenango for the purpose of intercepting the revolutionists if they should cross over from Mexico. The Mexican government denies that it has been asked to stop the revolutionists from crossing the Mexican frontier to Guatemala, and says that it has no knowledge of any revolutionary movement against that country.

Dispatches from Salvador are to the effect that the government of that country is in a bad financial state and unable to pay the salaries of its employees.

Probably Not the Train Robbers.

RACINE (Wis.) Nov. 14.—John Henderson and his brother-in-law, Ralph White, deny emphatically that they had anything to do with the train robbery at the Western Union Junction. They were suspected by detectives who found near the scene of robbery shells which fitted a gun rented by Henderson. They assert that they were out hunting and never saw Western Union Junction in their lives.

Officers here regard their story as true. It is reported a suspicious character was arrested today, but there is no positive information to this effect.

Trouble Among the Methodists.

CLEVELAND (O.) Nov. 14.—The Methodist General Missionary Committee struck the old snag of the relationship between the church and the north and south today.

Opposition to appropriations for the southern territory appeared in several quarters, and Bishop Foster made an impassioned speech in which he said he had seen the effects of northern interference with the field occupied by the southern church which were so terrible that he would not describe them. The matter is undecided though $3500 was voted for Alabama missions.

Resulted in a Tie.

MARION (N. J.) Nov. 14.—The third match between Capt. John N. Brewer, champion shot of the world, and E. D. Hulford of New York, took place today. A shooting was at 100 birds at 300 yards rose for $200 a side. Hulford won both previous matches and today's match resulted in a tie, each killing ninety-four birds.

A BRITISH CANARD DENIED.

The Cruiser Charleston Not to Make a Raid on Hawaii.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—[By The Associated Press.] Commodore Ramsay, who was acting today as Secretary of the Navy, denies positively that any orders have been sent to the Charleston in China to seize the Hawaiian Islands. The Charleston when last heard from was at Yokohama, Japan, and it had been the intention to have her return to the United States as soon as the Lancaster, with Admiral Harmony aboard, reaches the China station.

The Lancaster went around Cape of Good Hope from New York and is probably now somewhere in the Indian Ocean. When the Charleston is relieved she will naturally touch at Honolulu on her way home, as she cannot carry sufficient coal to make the trip direct from Asia to the United States.

FOUGHT IT OUT.

A Sanguinary Affray Between Railroaders in Arizona.

HOLBROOK (Ariz.) Nov. 14.—[By The Associated Press.] A shooting affray occurred at the rock quarry near here today between William Clark, an engineer, and Thomas Lovlin, a brakeman. Lovlin was killed, and Clark dangerously wounded. The quarrel was about an oil trouble, and Lovlin fired a shot at Clark which missed. He then knocked Clark down. The latter fell unconscious, and thinking he had killed him, Lovlin gave up his gun. Clark recovered consciousness, and securing a shotgun, pursued Lovlin, firing two shots, one of which took effect, causing death. Clark then lost consciousness again and may die.

The Chicago Anarchists deserve all they are getting. The American people know where to draw the line between free speech and insurrection.

JOHN CURRIE, once a sport and pugilist, now an evangelist, is holding a series of revival meetings in San Francisco. The rowdies will probably make no disturbances there, as Currie is known to be a hard-hitter.

BILL NEE in accounting for the "compressed despair" concealed in the wall of a coyote says: "I judge that the coyote has been politically on the wrong side for three or four thousand years, and that his sorrow has become chronic and his nature soured."

NORMAN L. MCNEIRO's steam yacht Norwood recently performed, in New York waters, the feat of going a measured mile in two minutes, twelve and a half seconds. That crowds the best trotting horse record very close. People are now talking about the steamship of the future that will cross the Atlantic in four days.

The lady managers of the World's Fair have decided that their president, Mrs. Potter Palmer, shall drive the last nail in the woman's building. The nail is to be a gorgeous affair made of gold, silver and copper. There are grave apprehensions, however, that the plan may fall at the last moment. Anybody who has ever seen a woman try to drive a nail knows why.

Some time ago an editor in Boston received a letter from the West addressed to Elizabeth Barrett Browning in his care, he having printed one of her poems. But this is nothing compared with the experience of a publishing house in the same city which had recently brought out an edition of "The Complete Angler," and the other day received a letter addressed to Izaak Walton, Esq.

MR. W. J. STILLMAN contributes to the current number of the Atlantic an article upon journalism and literature, in which he goes to unnecessary pains to warn young men against adopting journalism as a profession if they aspire to any form of immortality. Newspaper men have so much fun while life lasts that they are not so much concerned about being celebrated after they are dead.

The Santa Ana Blade thinks that, with the completion of the new railroad, now being built out to Westminster, it is highly probable that the carrying of peat to Los Angeles, San Bernardino and San Diego counties for fertilizing purposes will be the most profitable portion of its business, and that in it the peat owners will have a mine of wealth they little dreamed of on becoming owners thereof.

A Los Angeles paper thinks no more of announcing in a personal item that "Col. Brown was in town today to cremate his old friend Smith," than an Oakland paper would of announcing an ordinary social visit—(Oakland Enquirer).

Yes, people are "burned up" here in the most cordial manner every week or so. Oakland ought to call for a crematorium instead of that kite-shaped racetrack—it makes better time in the heats and is more effective in the long run.

During the recent campaign in Ohio, G. W. Michael delivered at Watkins a speech in the interest of the Prohibition party, which is declared an outrage in the name of free speech. Among other things he pretended to give a letter written from heaven by Abraham Lincoln to Maj. McKinley. If the letter is bogus, Michael ought to be sent to the house of detention for crazy campaign liars; if it is genuine, he should be arrested for interfering with the mails.

JUDGE JACKSON of the United States Circuit Court at Cleveland, O., has rendered a very far-reaching decision in the case of the Cleveland Gas Company against the city, as reported by the telegraph yesterday. The Council attempted to fix the rate on gas at 50 cents per 1000 feet, and against the reduction the company sought an injunction. The Court decided that the city had no right to fix the price of an article of which it was a consumer. If this principle is sustained it would mean that the Council could not fix the price to private consumers as well as the city because the private citizens are the government, and the authorities only agents. Water, gas and telephone companies would be given wide range which could only be controlled by the revocation of the franchises, and where such franchises partake of the nature of a contract, the public is at the mercy of the corporations.

did you get money to buy this ticket? Why ain't you on a brakebeam?" I felt encouraged, but still leary. We passed Colton, no one came in. Then I settled down and slept the sleep of the righteous, after my twenty-seven mile tramp. He slept the sleep of the righteous. Note the fine sense of humor, the delicious thrust at conscience! The righteous sleep and the steady-going train were rapidly carrying him out of the State. Now the most intensely interesting part of this frolic was approaching. "Arrived at Yuma 4 a.m. I was awake and watchful—no suspicious signs—no one I knew—I got curious and began to look around—got nervous, then nervy—got out, walked around and looked for Deputy Sheriff Russell—but he was not to be seen—got a cup of coffee and a doughnut, the first mouthful since Tropic—got back in the car and settled down—pretty soon along came a man with a pair of handcuffs and leg shackles clanking on his arm. Holy smoke!"

Having taken time to laugh with Mr. Lockwood over the intensely funny situations involved in his flight from the State, it seems to us that something is still lacking. Was the laugh hollow and insincere after all? Does it leave us with a misgiving as to whether this is real fun? Have we lowered our standards of right and wrong in considering this matter a huge joke? Have we smothered our sense of the disgrace of evil? Have we been scoffing at probity and honor? Have we forgotten for the moment that, under all circumstances, crime is crime; that it is vulgar, unmanly, contemptible?

When Mr. Lockwood took time to "review, reflect and criticize," does anybody think that he really made up that joke about the Governor's house? Let us rather suppose that his reflection was something in this line: "Six months ago I was a respectable man. I held a lucrative and honorable public office and my life was comfortable, even luxurious. I had a handsome, lovable wife and two little children. I left the wife and children to go hungry or accept succor from others, while I consorted with a bawd. I took money that was not mine—that had been confided to me as a sacred trust by reason of my official position—and I threw it away at the gambling table. I have been exposed, indicted, confined in prison, humiliated. I have obtained a temporary release by taking advantage of technicalities of the law, and I am now stealing away in the guise of a tramp. I am a ruined, dishonored man. I have lost my self-respect and the respect of my fellows. I have wrecked my home, dishonored my official position, prostituted my honor. I am a miserable failure in life, a self-constituted vagabond, a coward and a sneak. No condition is now so grateful as an absolute obliteration of my identity. Would that my name might be blotted out of the minds of men!"

We do not say that Lockwood's reflections were as thus given, but they should have been. Another man with some sense of outraged self-respect, some fragment of conscience left, would have reflected in that way. Another man might have had the brute courage to seek the nothingness so much to be desired by blowing out his brains. But Lockwood ran away and then made a joke about it.

Boys and young men who are forming characters, this is the true light in which you should view the heroic figure of a knave when it is set up before you. Look on both sides of it; do not be deceived by its brazen front; it is nothing but a debased and debasing idol of shame and remorse brought forth to delude you. Let not your sense of humor blunt your sense of integrity. Remember that the gibe of crime tends to the wreck of conscience. It may be hideously funny and comically awful; it may bring with it the sensation of a ridiculous plunge into hell. Boys, order your lives so that a man with a pair of clanking handcuffs may never strike terror to your heart!

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Their Claim Paid in Full.
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] The dispatch published in your paper yesterday morning from Fresno that I held $11,000 notes forged by one Baird is incorrect. The Los Angeles National Bank advanced to the Bank of Madera $5000 on their certificate of deposit, taking as security about $8000 in notes.

When the certificate was presented for payment to the new management, it was paid in full and the notes held for collateral surrendered. On their examination the cashier and president pronounced the notes forgeries. We got the money and delivered the certificate of deposit and notes to the officers of the bank.

GEORGE H. BONEBRAKE.

Electric Car Service.
LOS ANGELES, Nov. 14.—[To the Editor of THE TIMES.] Because there has been no public outbreak of indignation on the part of the "hill people" on account of the present unsatisfactory service of the Electric Company, it must not be considered that the residents of that section are satisfied by any means. The people of this section are patient and long-suffering, but there may come a time when patience ceases to be a virtue, and a public indignation meeting takes its place, at which time and place all citizens may agree and bind themselves to do just what about half the people have had to do—walk to either Temple or Seventh streets, and not patronize the Electric road.

All admit that riding on the electric car is pleasant, and all prefer it to any other mode of travel, but they are forced to use the other roads because of the uncertain and infrequent service. They feel justly indignant at the present management of the road, and consider that they are being outrageously imposed upon. Instead of a six-minute service, as promised, they have a sort of semi-occasional service, they will and perhaps they want some sort of service, and in despair the patient ones, after waiting, sadly turn away and walk to some of the other lines. In getting to trains, churches, theaters, or any place where time is essential, of course one cannot think of trusting to such a service. We venture the assertion that the road has not had half the patronage of the hill people, simply because of the above facts, and if they do not mend matters soon, they stand a chance of losing the half they have now.

A San Bernardino Man Charged with Being a Firebug.

A Nevada Man Gets a Verdict for $40,000 Against a Railway.

Officers Raid an Opium Smuggling Den at Marysville.

A Salinas Constable Who Killed a Woman Held for Trial in Spite of a Coroner's Verdict Exonerating Him.

By Telegraph to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Detective John Coffey today arrested Hyman Ellis, formerly a dry goods merchant of San Bernardino. The arrest was made by virtue of a telegram received by Chief Crowley. Ellis formerly conducted one of the largest stores in the southern citrus belt. Several months ago his store was discovered in flames. During the progress of the fire the firemen smelt coal oil, and this started a rumor that the fire had been started by Ellis. The insurance companies with which the merchant had taken out policies on his stock aggregating $17,000, at once drew the conclusion that the cause of the fire was the heavy policies on the stock. When the losses were adjusted it was found that the total damage caused by the fire amounted to $23,000, Ellis's stock being worth only a few thousand dollars.

During the session of the grand jury of San Bernardino county in October an indictment charging Ellis with arson was returned. A bench warrant was issued by the Superior Court of the same county and notice of the same telegraphed here, as it was learned that Ellis had fled to this city. Ellis denies having set fire to his store, and claims not to know the origin of the blaze. After his arrest he was released on bonds in $50,000 by order of Judge Murphy.

SHOT A WOMAN.

A Salinas Constable Held for Trial of Man-slaughter.

SALINAS, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] The four sons of the woman who was shot and killed by officer McCarthy in the Gabalín mountains a week ago, were arraigned before Justice Saray today on charges of assault with deadly weapons, and were discharged.

Officer McCarthy and the Portuguese were also examined on charges of murder, resulting in Officer McCarthy being held to answer before the Superior Court for manslaughter, and the Portuguese being discharged. McCarthy was immediately released on bonds.

Raiding a Smuggler's Nest.

MARYSVILLE, Nov. 14.—Last night officers Thomas W. Nelson and Thayer raided a suspicious house and found four large opium ovens with over 1000 five tael cans ready for packing the opium in when cooked. When the officers reached the room the occupants had escaped. The building was arranged to delay entrance as long as possible. The ovens and other apparatus showed recent use. From labels and packages about, at least $20,000 worth of opium must have passed through the place recently. No arrests have been made.

A Murderer at Large.

WOODLAND, Nov. 14.—William Wohlfrom, the slayer of Mat Faigle, broke jail this morning by sawing the bolts that secured the rear door of the corridor of the jail. Wohlfrom was sentenced to seventeen years at Folsom, but had been granted a new trial. Officers have been searching for him all day, and a liberal reward has been offered, but no clew has been found. One other short-term escapee with Wohlfrom, but he was overtaken at Yolo, a short distance from this city.

Fell Down an Elevator Shaft.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Late this afternoon Herman Weise, a clerk, who was delivering goods in the Chronicle building, fell down the elevator shaft from the tenth story. It is not known how he came to fall. When picked up he was dead, his neck being broken and his right arm torn from the shoulder. The body presented a fearful appearance.

Amador County Road Agents.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 14.—The stage which runs between this city and Plymouth, Amador county, was held up last Thursday by highwaymen. The driver was ordered to throw out the mailbags. The request was complied with, but the robbers obtained nothing. They robbed the driver of all his cash except $1.

Big Damages Against a Railway.

CARSON (Nev.), Nov. 14.—The jury in the case of Hamilton vs. the Southern Pacific Company, in which Hamilton sued for $100,000 for trainmen putting him off a train for refusing to sign an unlimited first-class ticket, awarded plaintiff $40,000 damages.

Robbed of a Large Sum.

SAN RAFAEL, Nov. 14.—Mrs. Annie Wheeler of Cloverdale said that she was robbed of $80 in money and a check for $1700 today by persons who saw her display money at the railroad station. Payment on the check has been stopped.

FLASHES FROM THE WIRES.

Near Davey, about four miles from Lincoln, Neb., fire destroyed the home of Mrs. Anna Neumann, who was burned to death. The Austro-Hungarian German and Italian delegates who have been holding a conference at Munich have fully agreed upon a solvency. They will at once proceed to draft a treaty and then negotiate with Switzerland.

Delegates to the meeting of the Supreme Council of the National Farmers' Alliance at Indianapolis next week are beginning to arrive in that city. It is learned that a resolution will be introduced declaring against any third party scheme.

Three is great excitement through Pike county, Pa., over the shooting of T. E. David, his wife and son, by a worthless fellow named Simon Fields, with whom David and family had always been on good terms. The assailant was arrested. Threats of lynching are being made.

Premier Mercier of Quebec has instructed the Crown prosecutor to have the editors, publishers and correspondents of the Toronto Empire, Montreal Gazette, Montreal Le Monde, Montreal La Presse and Quebec Courrier du Canada arrested and prosecuted on criminal charges for having published or reproduced the Whalen "boodle" charges.

BIG FOOT'S BAND.

South Dakota Indians in Open Revolt Against the Authorities.

PIERRE (S. D.), Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] The remnant of Big Foot's band of Indians, numbering some sixty families, are in open revolt against the authority of the agent at the Cheyenne agency. This band of Indians has been living on ceded lands. As no Indian can live off the reservation without taking land in severalty and declaring his intention of becoming a citizen, McKeon went up to allot these Indians land. When he got there he found that they had a few days before sold off all their stock, packed up and left the camp. He notified the agent, who dispatched half a dozen Indian police after the band to bring them back to the Cheyenne agency.

They overtook the band near the edge of the Pine Ridge agency and endeavored to persuade them to return. All but one Indian refused and stated that they were going on to the Pine Tree agency, to reside there in future. The Indian policemen returned to the agent, and when McKeon left he had dispatched a big force of Indian police to bring them back without fail.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—Acting Indian Commissioner Bell has received advice from Special Agent McKean at Pierre, S. D., confirming the published reports regarding Big Foot's band abandoning their camp and going to Pine Ridge. He says he understands that the bucks are all armed. What this outbreak means he could not learn. The regular agent thought it was because he demanded that their children go to school. McKean doubts if the Indian police will bring them back without trouble. There are some rumors on the Cheyenne River that the Pine Ridge Indians are preparing to renew the ghost dance, but nothing reliable as to that effect could be learned.

ON THE RACE TRACK.

The Day Unfavorable for Record-breaking at Stockton.

Results of the Races at Garfield Park and Nashville—Senator Stanford Races an Offer of $50,000 for Arion.

By Telegraph to The Times.

STOCKTON, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] A cold north wind blew in the faces of the horses coming down the last quarter of the Stockton track today, at times reaching the strength of a gale. So Marvin decided not to start the Palo Alto trotters, Palo Alto and Bell Bird. When the wind died away somewhat, several good horses were sent against their records and made good time. Durfee's McKinney worked out in 2:16, but it was not a start for a record, the time not being official.

Thadon, a yearling colt by Matador, by Onward, owned by G. W. Warlow of Fresno, was driven by Matt Dyer to beat his record of 2:38 made here last Tuesday. The game youngster trotted a square race, with one short break, coming in strong under the whip in 2:39, beating all yearling records except that of 2:36 made here by the Palo Alto filly, Bell Bird. Corbett's colt, Freedom, had the record of 2:39 before Bell Bird lowered it.

The Sidney yearling filly Frou Frou, owned by the Nelsen stock farm, made a record of 2:30 3/4 here, and after Asherton's performance was brought out by Millard Sands to go again, but she did not do better than 2:38.

There is considerable interest in yearling records, and all the youngsters will go next Tuesday.

Cyrus R., by Nutwood, was driven in a race by his owner, T. W. Barstow, against L. U. Shippey's Dute Wilkes, and equalled his time of 2:19. Later, Cyrus R. was driven against time, and made a record of 2:17 1/2.

ON EASTERN TRACKS.

Results of the Racing at Garfield Park and Nashville.

NASHVILLE, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] evenfurlongs: Portuguese won, Rosa second, Pat King third; time 1:81 1/2.

Fifteen-sixteenths of a mile: Nero won, J. T. second, Lady Blackburn third; time 1:38 3/4.

Handicap, 1 mile: Van Buren won, Ethel Gray second, Vashti third; time 1:48.

1 mile and 20 yards: Hydy won, Joe Carter second, Sam Farmer third; time 1:46.

Eleven-sixteenths of a mile: Goldstone won, Hispania second, Lord Wilbrook third; time 1:09 1/2.

Chicago, Nov. 14.—Half a mile: Ivanhoe won, Sister Linda second, Bob Wade third; time 0:55 1/2.

Five furlongs: Jennie B. won, Picadilly second, Forest Belle third; time 1:11 1/2.

Six furlongs: Anna Race won, Cast Out second, Nantico third; time 1:25 1/2.

1 mile and a sixteenth: Annie Brown won, Churchill Clark second, Ella Blackburn third; time 2:01 1/2.

Six furlongs: Dr. Joeman won, Spectator second, Annie Clark third; time 1:24 1/2.

High Price for a Colt.

FRANKLIN (Pa.), Nov. 14.—Today Miller & Sibley, proprietors of the Prospect Hill stock farm, sold to Charles and Franklin Ridgely of Springfield, Ill., their great Electioneer colt Conductor for $85,000 cash and ten reserved services. As the horse will command a stud fee of $500, the price paid is equivalent to $40,000. Conductor last year won a phenomenal race for three-year-olds at Cleveland, beating the best horses of his age in the country and taking a record of 2:25 1/2 in the sixth heat. This year he has not been started in any race, but has trotted quarters in 30 1/2 seconds. He is by Electioneer.

Trying to Buy Arion.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—Ever since Senator Stanford's two-year-old colt Arion trotted a remarkable mile in 2:10 1/2, numerous offers of purchase have been made to him. One telegraphic bid was received by Senator Stanford offering $60,000 for the colt, but the reply that was returned was to the effect that $60,000 would not buy one-half of Arion. C. J. Williams of Independence Iowa, owner of the trotter Astell, has offered $25,000 for the privilege of breeding ten mares to Arion in 1893 or in the colt's four-year-old form.

Racing at Oakland.

OAKLAND, Nov. 14.—A small crowd witnessed the races today.

First race: Annie Lewis won, Kyrene second; time 1:17.

Second race, all ages, 1 mile: Idaho Chief won, John Treat second; time 1:43.

Third race, 3/4 mile heats, all ages: Oregon Eclipse won, Ida Glen second; best time 0:49.

Many Financial Bubbles Bursting in Berlin.

The Principal Banks so Far Able to Weather the Storm.

Bavarians Irritated at the Kaiser's Assumption of New Powers.

A San Francisco Girl Establishes Her Claim to a Title and Estate in Germany—An Ovation to Bismarck.

By Telegraph to The Times.

BERLIN, Nov. 14.—[Copyright, 1891 by the New York Associated Press.] Despite the excited articles which recently appeared in the newspapers proclaiming a financial crisis here, no crisis exists, and notwithstanding the failures of three firms of private bankers and trouble threatening other houses, the same character of the position of the large banks and greater financial firms remains solid. The Bourse has doubtless experienced a severe shaking up mainly through the revelation of the "flash" nature of a prosperity which was supposed to be permanent and genuine. Present developments cause no surprise among leaders in high financial circles, who have long expected that "bubble" houses would burst. Some firms of great importance are running threatening their existence have appealed to the large financiers for assistance, though there is no panic.

The commercial depression is consistent with the decline of values at the Bourse. The period of general inflation, which reached its climax last year, has been succeeded by a persistent reaction downward. Since the reaction set in, the shares of the Deutsche Gesellschaft, a bank of the highest repute, have declined 88 per cent.; the Handel-Gesellschaft, 75 per cent.; the Stadt Bank, 81 per cent.; the Dresden Bank, 54 per cent.; Harpener, 164 per cent.; Bochum Union, 60 per cent.

These striking figures carry their own comments, but the business community feels assured that the basis of the principal banks is strong. As usual in cases of this kind the cry is raised by certain journals that the government ought to interfere. Kreuz Zeitung declares that half of the banks in Berlin are rotten and urges the government to institute an inquiry.

THE KAISER'S WILL IS SUPREME LAW. The Municipal Council of Munich have questioned the Burgomaster of the city as to the truth of the report that Emperor William on a recent visit to Munich inscribed his name in the golden book of the city, adding the words "suprema lex repis voluntas." The report was admitted to be true by the Burgomaster. The Bavarian press protests strongly against the assumption by His Majesty of prerogatives never conceded to a Bavarian sovereign, and the organs of the Freisinnige party profess to find in the incident an illustration of the despotic ideas of the Emperor, which contact with parliamentarism must correct.

The Reichstag will resume its sittings on Tuesday next. It is not yet known when Bismarck will appear. His health requires careful attention, and he will undertake a parliamentary campaign only when assured of his ability to do so by his physicians.

Official inquiry into the report that American pork infected with trichina has been imported into Dusseldorf, brings out the fact that the diseased pork did not bear the stamp of American inspection. Consequently there will be no interference with the admission of American pork, the healthy condition of which has been properly certified to.

A FRISCO GIRL IN LUCK.

The case of Mrs. Catherine Robinson and Ida Green, who have been suing for the estate of the late Baron von Barnekow, has been decided in favor of the claimants. Miss Green, the courts decide, is entitled to call herself Baroness von Barnekow, and receives the whole of the Baron's property after his debts are paid. Years ago Baron von Barnekow, an officer of the German army, after a life of dissipation, fled to America, and after a varied career became a runner for a hotel in San Francisco under the alias of Fred Green. While employed in this capacity he became acquainted with a girl named Galligan. The couple lived together, though not legally married, but after the birth of a daughter the Baron yielded to the importunity of the girl and married her, thereby, under the laws of California, making the daughter though born out of wedlock, his legal issue. The Baron soon resumed his dissipated life, neglecting, and finally deserting his family. His wife applied for and was granted a divorce. Baron von Barnekow subsequently returned to Germany, falling heir to the family title and estates. Without obtaining a divorce he married again in 1887, a year before his California wife obtained her divorce. The Baron died. His second marriage was naturally illegal. Without knowing that his first wife was dead Mrs. Green obtained a divorce, and later on married a sailor named Robinson. A sister of the Baron, Countess Moltke, wife of a major in the army, a near relative of the Field Marshal, suspecting the truth, instituted a search which resulted in finding the former wife and child of the Baron, and led to the establishment of their claims as legal heirs to a large, though heavily encumbered estate.

The War Department has concluded experiments with American corn, and has decided to recommend the use by the army of bread made of equal proportions of corn and rye. It is believed the Department of the Interior will follow this example. American Minister Phelps anticipates in consequence of this decision that German markets will be thrown open for the admission of many million bushels of American grain.

AN OVATION TO BISMARCK.

Prince Bismarck passed through Berlin tonight on his way from Varsen to Friedrichsruhe. A large number of the Prince's admirers were in waiting at the station and when the train arrived they pressed around and gave the ex-Chancellor a hearty greeting. Prince Bismarck saluted the crowd and shook hands with heartiness with those near enough to reach his extended hands. As the train pulled out the crowd sang "Deutschland über Alles," and shouted, "Come back to Berlin, come back to the Reichstag!"

Knights of Labor.

TOLDO (O.) Nov. 14.—The Knights of Labor General Assembly today, after discussing the question of objections to certain principles of the order decided that all who do not accept all the principles enumerated in the platform must leave the order. A resolution was adopted recommending that, as a rule, assemblies refrain from electing to membership any one holding or seeking political positions.

MONTT'S CREDENTIALS.

Chile's Minister Formally Received by the President.

The Envoy Delivers a Diplomatically Polite Address.

The President in His Reply Talks Plainly About Existing Troubles.

Public Treating the Followers of Balmaceda with Severity—Rigid Orders for the Prosecution of the ex-Dictator's Partisans.

By Telegram to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] Señor Montt, the Chilean Minister, was formally presented to the President this morning by the Secretary of State. The minister was accompanied by Señores Critz, Secretary of Legation, and Guillermo Aymaenagel and Valentin del Campo, attaches. All were in full evening dress in accordance with the custom of South American countries on state occasions. They first waited on Secretary Blaine at the State Department, and were by him escorted to the White House.

The President received them standing in the blue parlour, which was illuminated with electric lights for the occasion. After the formal introduction by Secretary Blaine, Señor Montt advanced and addressed the President in Spanish, as follows:

Mr. President: I have the honor to present the credentials which accredit me in the capacity of Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from the Republic of Chile to the United States of North America. The object of the mission which the government of Chile has confided to me is to cultivate and maintain relations of peace and friendship between the United States and Chile which have ever been close and cordial. For the accomplishment of this purpose I beg to assure you that I shall be guided by the noble country, which is so highly favored by Providence, and for your own happiness.

The President responded as follows:

Mr. Minister: I am glad to receive from your hands letters accrediting you as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from the Republic of Chile to the United States. The presence of a representative of the government of Chile at this capital will I hope tend to promote a good understanding between the two governments and an early settlement on terms just and honorable to both of the diplomatic questions now somewhat urgently awaiting adjustment. The government of the United States, as well as its people, particularly desire and rejoice in the prosperity of all our neighbors in this hemisphere. Our diplomatic relations with them have always been and will continue to be free from intermeddling with their internal affairs. Our people are and always ready to give our friendly offices to the promotion of peace. If these are not acceptable or do not avail, it is our policy to preserve an honorable and strict neutrality. No advantage during the recent war in Chile. Tempting commercial and political advantages may be offered for our aid or influence by one or the other of the belligerent parties, but this we have not deemed consistent with the obligations of international honor and good will. The government was quite as determined upon this policy as it is now. It is our policy to remain neutral, where it could be made available for war purposes, the silver of Balmaceda, as it was called, was ready to pose him. The questions involved were Chilean questions, and this government endeavored to observe those principles of non-interference upon which it had so strongly insisted when civil war disturbed our own people. I cannot doubt that this policy will commend itself to those who now administer the government of Chile, nor can I doubt that when excitement has given place to calmness, when the truth is ascertained, and selfish and designing perversions of recent incidents exposed, our respective governments, and a basis of increased mutual respect, confidence and friendship. Mr. Minister, this government and our people rejoice that peace has been restored in Chile and that its government is an expression of the free choice of its people. You may assure your honored President, who has been chosen under circumstances which so strongly testify to his moderation and to the esteem in which he is held by all parties, that the government of the United States entertains only friendly feelings toward the people of Chile, and cannot doubt that existing and all future differences between the two governments will find an honorable adjustment. To you Mr. Minister I tender a personal welcome.

This closed the ceremony and the visitors departed.

CHILEAN VENGEANCE.

Orders Given to Show No Mercy to the Conquerors.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] Advice from Chile state that on the 7th of September, the Minister of Justice sent to all prominent attorneys of the republic a circular, which said:

In order that the revolution may produce the fruits imperiously demanded by the nation which has been shed and the cruel sacrifices it has imposed upon the people, it is necessary that justice should be sternly visited upon the guilty in order to restore to outraged law its former power. The Minister requests the greatest activity and diligence to discover persons who were concerned in the following, among the numberless crimes and offenses committed: The assassination of Don Isidro Ossa, violation and sacking of private property executed by order or with the tacit consent of the authorities, the whippings and tortures for political opinions, and also as a procedure of investigation; the violation of the correspondence and that of foreign ministers; the public assassination of the sergeants of the Esmeralda battalion and of Don Ricardo Cumming and companions; the horrible massacre of Locanos; the theft of public money, etc.

The Prosecuting Attorney has addressed a note to the criminal judges, setting forth the details of these crimes and urging active work.

ASSASSIN BOOTH.

A Discovery that Throws New Light on His Conspiracy.

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] Antiquarian Smith has obtained conclusive evidence that the trunks found on the schooner Marie Victoria, wrecked at Bic in the autumn of 1864, were the property of J. Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Lincoln. During that autumn several trunks marked "J. W. B. New Providence," were shipped on board the schooner Marie Victoria at Quebec. How they reached Quebec is unknown. It would appear that Booth, in anticipation of the murder of Lincoln, had secretly sent his theatrical wardrobe through Canada and had it shipped from a Canadian port in expectation of finding it to hand in one of the Southern States when he had succeeded in the object which he had in view, and that the conspiracy to assassinate President Lincoln was culminated a month before.

ARMOR FOR SHIPS.

Some Satisfactory Tests—Better Plates Made Here Than Abroad.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] The second of the armor-plate tests was made at India Head today in the presence of Secretary Tracy, members of the Ordnance Board, army and navy experts and military and naval attaches of the foreign legations. The tests were most satisfactory and demonstrated in the opinion of naval officers that this country can produce as good, if not better, armor for naval ships than is produced abroad.

The plates tested were the high carbon-nickel-steel plates of Carnegie & Co., carbon-nickel-steel Harveyized plates of the same firm and high carbon-nickel-steel plates Harveyized from the Bethlehem Iron Works. A 6-inch rifle was used in firing 12 out of the 15 shots fired and was placed with the end of the muzzle 57 feet to the rear of the plates. Five shots in all were discharged at each plate, four by the 6-inch gun in four corners and shot in the center of each plate by an 8-inch rifle. Each plate was 10 1/4 inches in thickness. A member of the Ordnance Board, speaking of the experiments, said that any one of the shots would have gone through the steel armor of any ship in the world and exploding would have destroyed the vessel.

Commodore Folger, Chief of the Ordnance Bureau, in summing up the results of the tests, said: "The high carbon-nickel plate from Bethlehem has shown less penetration and less cracking than others and is decidedly the best plate. The penetration was markedly less and the cracking one-third less than the plates of the other day. In no case did the point of the projectile go into the oak backing and the plate cracked toward the weaker side. If this side had been normally treated it is fair to suppose that no crack would have occurred. The high carbon-nickel-steel plate from Carnegie was 45 per cent. carbon, which we knew before we fired at it was too high, and that it would probably crack. The tempering methods used in the low carbon Plate Harveyized were defective and we did not expect from it any better result than from the Harveyized nickel plate, which Carnegie furnished before we received the high carbon-nickel-plate from Bethlehem, which has always been our favorite and is unquestionably superior to any armor that has been tried in this country or abroad."

THE REVOLT IN BRAZIL.

Rebel Troops Threaten to March upon Rio de Janeiro.

More Garrisons Declare for the Insurgents—The New Junta Now Has an Army of 40,000 Well-armed Soldiers.

By Telegram to The Times.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] The Herald's Buenos Ayres special says: "Telegrams from Paso de Los Libres confirm the revolt in Rio Grande do Sul, and to add to the seriousness of affairs, it is reported that the Sixth Regiment has joined the insurgents at Uruguayana, a town in the southwestern part of Rio Grande. Its commander, Col. Salgado, has also gone over. Besides Uruguayana, the towns of Pedrito, Alegrito, Rosario and Itagui are reported to have declared in favor of the insurgents. The forces of the new Junta are said to number 40,000, all well armed and enthusiastic. The leaders are reported to be planning an immediate attack on Porto Alegre. The garrison at Casapava is reported to have joined the rebels."

"The troops of the Junta at Santa Ana and Livramento are said to be preparing to march upon Rio Janeiro and a conflict seems imminent. The government fleet at Stagnil, composed of two monitors and three gunboats, has been ordered up to the Junta. This caused great rejoicing."

"Mail advices via Coatz says the rebels surrounded the arsenal at Atsqui yesterday. The arsenal is defended by 300 government troops. The rebels demanded its surrender. The commander refused. An attack was expected today. The inhabitants are generally alarmed and are fleeing from the town."

RIO JANEIRO, Nov. 14.—It is asserted that much discontent exists among the people of San Paulo. The censorship exercised over all telegrams is stricter than ever."

A WATER FAMINE.

The Supply in New York Will Fail Unless Rain Comes.

NEW YORK, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] People here are in fear of a water famine or great scarcity at least if the drought continues. The chief engineer of the Croton aqueduct, speaking in regard to it, said: "The present supply from the Croton River is about 40,000,000 gallons a day, and this comparatively small supply will gradually grow less as the drought continues. The reserve supply in Kirk Lake, Lake Mahopac, and other smaller lakes has been entirely exhausted. I am trying to hold all the water I can in the Central Park and Forty-Second-street reservoirs for use in case of fire. But with the utmost economy the water there is steadily falling, and is now lower than ever before."

Men were sent out yesterday to turn off the water from all public drinking fountains and open hydrants. All sprinkling of streets will be stopped. This alone will save about 200,000 gallons a day. A reduction of the pressure will also save over 1,000,000 gallons a day. "All that will save us from a water famine now," said Mr. Birdsall, "will be a fall of two inches of rain."

An Infamous Couple Sentenced.

ELIZABETH (N. J.), Nov. 14.—Judge McCormick today sentenced Samuel Beekman (colored) and his white paramour, Jennie Wiley, to ten years' imprisonment at hard labor. It took twelve men to overpower Beekman and place him in a cell. His wife died several months ago, leaving a delicate girl named Pearl. Beekman took up with a white woman and they used the child in such an inhuman manner that she died in a short time.

FRISCO'S HOPES.

Her Plans for Securing the National Conventions.

Fifty Thousand Dollars Raised as a Guarantee Fund and a Committee Sent East to Push the Scheme Through.

By Telegram to The Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] The work of securing $50,000 in subscriptions as a preliminary guarantee fund for the expenses of the national Republican and Democratic conventions, in the event of either or both of those conventions being held in this city, has been completed by the committee of business men, and a committee appointed by them to go to Washington to lay San Francisco's offer before the National Committees, leaves here tonight. The committee appointed to wait on the Republican National Committee in connection with M. H. de Young, national committeeman, consists of John C. Quinn, C. O. Alexander, James V. Coleman and A. G. Booth, but other names may be added to the committee if it should be deemed necessary.

Mr. Quinn said today: "One of our first moves in dealing with the national committees will be to make a flat offer to pay the transportation of all delegates to and from the Coast. We will also guarantee payment of all incidental expenses of the convention, such as clerk hire, band hire, pay of doorkeepers and pages and other necessary items of expense. We are no longer troubled by the question of finances, and concentrate all our attention to the main issues, and will go to work feeling that we are in a position to carry out any promises we may see fit to make. The fact that the great trunk lines are favorably disposed to San Francisco, the committee considers, is one point gained, and the flat rate which has been obtained of $50 for the round trip from Chicago and like points, they believe will assist in bringing a great many friends of the delegates to the Coast during the holding of the conventions. The tickets would be good for ninety days, thus allowing time to visit the entire State; and Los Angeles, San Diego, Fresno, Sacramento and other important points would cooperate with San Francisco in extending California hospitality."

HOPEFUL KALNOKY.

He Thinks the European Outlook Favorable for Peace.

VIENNA, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] In the Hungarian delegation today Count Kalnoky, Austrian Minister of Foreign Affairs, scouted the idea that the visit of the French fleet to Cronstadt had any bearing on the discussion of the Dardanelles question. Adverting to the relations between Austria and Italy, Kalnoky said the two governments had an identical conservative eastern policy. He stated from personal knowledge that the interview between De Kiers, Russian Minister of Foreign Affairs and Rudini, the Italian Premier, would have no disturbing influence on the contrary, the European outlook was quite peaceful. Otherwise he would have been obliged to ask for much larger credits for the purpose of armament. Regarding the movement of Russian troops on the Austrian frontier, Count Kalnoky said that as far as he knew they still continued.

BEHIND THE BARS.

A Gang of Safe-blowers and Burglars Caught in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] Nineteen men were arrested tonight in and near the Farmers' saloon on Clinton and Madison streets. They belong to an organized gang of safe-blowers and thieves that has been successfully operating in St. Louis and Chicago. Considerable stolen property was captured. The police have been tracing these fellows for some time and tonight succeeded in corralling most of the gang. The burglaries with which these men are connected aggregate thousands of dollars. A majority of the men have "done time" and the others are well known as crooks. Thirteen of the men were caught in the saloon, but six others were in a room in a house a short distance away and made a desperate resistance. They were overpowered, however, and all placed behind the bars.

A Frightful Fall.

CHICAGO, Nov. 14.—James Charlsen broke the record today with a frightful fall of nineteen stories. He was a terracotta operator, working inside the roof of the new Masonic Temple. He and a companion named John Wilson erected a temporary scaffold, and Charlsen was standing on this when it gave way. The distance to the ground was covered in about three seconds. Every bone in his body was crushed, and the corpse presented a frightful spectacle. Wilson saved his life by clinging to the side supports. He has since disappeared, and it is said he and Charlsen quarreled a few moments before the scaffold broke.

WE WANT

To become personally acquainted with every customer of this house, to study and to learn how to improve the service and to remedy any slight or wrong that may occur. You probably have noticed the very great improvement in this respect that has been going on the past few months. Better clerks; more polite attention, greater freedom in showing goods; civil answers to all questions. No employee is allowed to speak disrespectfully to a customer or about other business houses or their employees; if they attend strictly to the business of this house they will be kept busy. Looking at goods will be at all times encouraged, whether you wish to purchase or not, and as rapidly as new ideas to make the service better can be arranged for it will be done. "The very best service" is the watchword at present. Moderate profits is another new idea; moderate profits on all goods. This places you upon a sound basis for buying, and it is right. The business is growing; it is irrigated with common sense and the best possible service; this gives large growth. Take the cloak department—moderate profits, a large stock and the best possible treatment, trade more than quadrupled; the dress goods department—greater freedom in showing goods, polite treatment, moderate profits, a big stock and the trade more than doubled. The trade in these two departments extends in the same manner all over the house. In cloaks what a trade there has been, and to think the season is just beginning. The house is growing as never before. No misrepresentations to sell goods. No incompetent help to wait upon you, but the very best possible service that can be procured. There is today great competition among the employees to see which can render the best service in showing and selling goods. This is greatly to the advantage of the patrons of the house. We ask you to notice these improvements.

THE COURTS.

Judge Wade Anxious About His Courtroom.

He Orders the Sheriff to at Once Put It in Order.

The Ties That Bound Three Unhappy Couples Dissolved.

Mrs. Osthoff Granted a Divorce from Her Festive Husband—Suit Against Indian Agent Rust—General Court Notes.

Yesterday morning Judge Wade issued an order directing the Sheriff to fit up and furnish his new quarters in the Courtroom, the Board of Supervisors having apparently made no provision therefor, although the new courtroom is ready for occupancy. The order reads as follows:

It appearing to the Court that no suitable courtroom for the holding of the sessions of this court, in Department Three, together with the chambers of the judge of said department, has been provided by the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county, together with the necessary furniture for the transaction of the business of this department.

And it further appearing that the Board of Supervisors has provided certain rooms in the new Courtroom, of said county for this department, which rooms are now in course of preparation, and almost in a condition for occupancy.

And it further appearing to the Court that no provision has been made by the Board of Supervisors for the necessary furniture of said courtroom and chambers, and that some time will be consumed in preparing such furniture for said rooms in a fit and proper manner, the expenses available for the use of this department, beyond the time necessary to furnish said courtroom and chambers, the Sheriff of said county is hereby ordered and directed to provide such furniture as shall be necessary for the use of the Court in the transaction of business, for the courtroom, judge's chambers, jury room, reporter's room and witness room, and the expenses incurred in providing such furniture, to be reported to the Judge of this department.

W. P. WADE,

Judge of the Superior Court.

It will be noticed that the Court does not specify the kind of furniture with which the Sheriff is ordered to fit up the new quarters of Department Three, and the inference is that Judge Wade means that the old furniture shall be removed from the Murrieta Block until the Supervisors see fit to substitute new furniture therefor. As, however, the contract for furnishing the Courtroom has been let to the Los Angeles Furniture Company, and that firm declines to allow any furniture to go into the building that they do not place there, upon the penalty of a suit for the bill of such furniture, whether supplied by their firm or not, it is possible that the company may not permit the furniture from the old courtroom to be placed in the new, and some fun may confidently be looked for in the near future.

It will be remembered that the six judges of the Superior Court drew lots for the choice of courtrooms in the new building, and that Judge Wade was left out in the cold. When the five lucky judges moved into their new quarters, Judge Wade was given his choice of the old courtrooms, and picked out that in the Murrieta building, formerly occupied by Judge Smith, that being the best fitted up. It would seem, therefore, in the face of these facts, that Judge Wade is somewhat hasty when he states in his order that no suitable courtroom for the sessions of Department Three has been provided by the Supervisors.

SUIT AGAINST INDIAN AGENT RUST.

The papers in the case of Lucy A. Fontain vs. Horatio N. Rust, a suit to recover $3000 damages for an alleged trespass and forcible ejection, were filed in the United States Circuit Court yesterday, the matter having been transferred from Judge Otis' court at San Bernardino.

Plaintiff avers that she was in quiet possession of a certain piece of land which she occupied under claim of right in San Bernardino County, and erected thereon pens for chickens, pigs and other small animals, by the aid of which she sought to eke out a living as a truck farmer. Mr. Rust, she claims, came upon her as a band of Indians, had her arrested upon a warrant, and proceeded during her absence to demolish her buildings, and appropriate most of her effects.

Mr. Rust, Indian agent of the Mission Indians, claims that at the time mentioned Mrs. Fontain and her son were arrested for squatting on the reservation, and were carried off to court, where they were released on promise not to do it again. She now proposes through this suit to test the question as to whether the land she was on was on a reservation or not.

DIVORCES GRANTED.

In Department three yesterday afternoon the case of H. M. Leach against A. M. Leach, a suit for divorce on the ground of desertion, was called for trial before Judge Wade, and the default of the defendant having been duly entered, the Court at the close of plaintiff's testimony granted a decree as prayed for.

Mrs. Eliza Osthoff was granted a decree by Judge Van Dyke, yesterday, divorcing her from her husband, Albert Osthoff, on the grounds of failure to provide and desertion, and allowing her to resume her maiden name, Eliza Vogel, the defendant having allowed the matter to go by default. The parties were married at St. Louis in 1866, and moved to this city eight years ago, since which time Osthoff has been connected with various saloons and restaurants, one of his latest ventures being that of proprietor of the Olympic beer hall on West First street. About eighteen months ago, his wife's property having been squandered, Osthoff left the city, and has since resided at Seattle.

Court Notes.

Upon motion of the District Attorney an information was filed in Department one yesterday morning charging Benjamin F. Hunsaker with embezzlement and the Court fixed Monday, the 23rd inst., as the time for the arraignment of the defendant thereon; also against Wah Sing, charging him with grand larceny, which matter was set for arraignment on Monday next.

Upon motion of defendant's counsel, J. B. Dockweiler, Esq., the arraignment of Thomas Kelley upon the charge of having assaulted J. G. Green with intent to commit murder, at Acton on September 15, was postponed by Judge Smith yesterday morning until Wednesday next.

F. S. Milligan appeared before Judge Smith in Department One yesterday morning for arraignment upon the charge of forgery, preferred against him by Hugh J. Smith, upon whom he passed a check for $78.50 on the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank, to which he forged the signature of Charles Ferguson, on August 9 last. After waiting all his legal rights and privileges Milligan entered his plea of guilty to the charge, whereupon the Court sentenced him to imprisonment.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Arrest of F. H. Heald, the Elsinore Capitalist.

Charged with Double Dealing in a Land Transaction.

Lots Sold to Settlers and also to a Trust Company.

Heald Denies Any Intent of Wrong-doing, and Says the Matter Was a Mistake of His Book-keeper.

In the penitentiary at San Quentin for the term of two years.

In Department Four yesterday the case of Mary N. Ruddick against L. W. Dennis, a suit to obtain a partition of certain property, came up for hearing before Judge Van Dyke, and resulted in findings and an interlocutory decree being ordered for plaintiff, as prayed for.

Judge Wade yesterday allowed the settled statement in the case of Leonis vs. Biscailuz, and ordered that the motion for a new trial be placed on the law calendar for hearing on November 23.

In Department Five yesterday afternoon Judge Shaw rendered his decision in the case of W. H. Melander vs. J. Robson, a suit to recover $37.50, which was submitted to him on Friday, ordering judgment for plaintiff as prayed for.

The attorneys for Wong Ark, the Chinaman recently convicted of the murder of his mistress, Goot Gue, in April last, were yesterday granted an additional twenty days time by Judge McKinley, within which time to prepare their bill of exceptions.

United States Commissioner Van Dyke held a preliminary examination yesterday in the case against F. F. Livingston, postmaster of Campo, in San Diego county, and S. E. Gaskell, his deputy, who are charged with having in June last falsified their returns to the head office at Washington, which resulted in his holding Gaskell to answer. Livingston was discharged, the evidence being insufficient to warrant the Court in holding him to answer.

The trial of the case of Z. P. King against H. Postman et al., a suit to obtain a decree that defendants hold a certain lease for the front eighteen feet of the premises at 212 South Spring street in trust for plaintiff, and for $1000 damages for breach of contract, was commenced before Judge McKinley yesterday, and will be resumed on Friday morning next.

A complaint was filed in the Township Court yesterday by J. J. Whitaker of Mission Heights charging one J. de Nye with having assaulted him with a pitchfork, with intent to commit murder, on Friday.

New Suits.

Among the documents filed with the County Clerk yesterday were the preliminary papers in the following new cases:

S. R. Macley vs. S. A. Williams; suit to recover the sum of $1451.93 alleged to be due on a note.

Millard N. Sheldon vs. John F. Stevenson et al.; suit to foreclose a mortgage for $1800.

Uses of Bamboo.

It is hoped by the Department of Agriculture that the bamboo may yet be cultivated in this country as it is in China, where it supplies a large part of the wants of the people, being applied to more than 500 different purposes. In the Flowery Kingdom it takes the place of both iron and steel. The farmer builds his house and fences out of it; his farming utensils as well as his household furniture are manufactured from it, while the tender shoots furnish him with a most delicious vegetable for his table.

The roots are carved into fantastic images, shaped into divining blocks to guess the will of the gods, or cut into lantern handles and canes. The tapering culms are used for the props of houses, the frame work of awnings, the ribs of sails and shafts of rakes; for fences and every sort of frames, coops and cages and the handles and ribs of umbrellas and fans. The leaves are sewed into rain-coats and thatches. The shavings and curled thread furnish materials for stuffing pillows, while parts supply the bed for sleeping, the chopsticks for eating, the pipe for smoking, the broom for sweeping, the mattress to lie upon, the chair to sit upon, the table to eat on, the food to eat and the fuel to cook it with, etc., etc. In fact, its uses are almost without number.

Just in the Nick of Time.

(Clothes and Furnisher.) "Am I to understand," said the young man bawling, as he rose to go, "that all is over between us?"

"I am afraid that is the case," she said calmly, a slight tone of Jersey City hauteur observable in her voice.

"Then," he answered briskly, reaching for his hat, "you have told me at just the right moment. I have recently ordered a new winter overcoat, and I will just have time to countermand those pockets under the arms."

So Did He.

(New York Sun.) She (on her wedding trip.) What is the whistle blowing for, Fred? Fred. We are approaching either a station or a tunnel. She. I—I hope it's a tunnel.

"People don't grow famous in a hurry, and it takes a deal of hard work even to earn your bread and butter."—LOUISA M. ALCOTT.

Yes, Indeed,

IT TAKES a deal of hard work to earn anything nowadays.

We have been working hard to build up a reputation for selling good clothing at popular prices, and we have our reward in the satisfaction of having thousands of steady patrons who are always ready to say a good word for us. Some fifteen years ago there was quite a depression in trade in this town; one merchant after the other toppled over. As the saying goes, "they went up Salt creek," and although we had a stock of goods on hand that were too good in quality and too high in price to suit "dull times," yet we weathered the storm. No sheriff has ever put a padlock on our doors, and today we can proudly say

We got Ahead in the World

So we are now enabled to buy and sell clothing, furnishing goods or hats at prices that few competitors can cope with. We do not say this in a spirit of braggadocio—we are only dealing with facts.

If you are in need of anything in our line, just pay us a call. We think we can convince you that we are on "top of the heap" in our line, both as regards assortment and right prices.

Leaks on the Farm.

There are many leaks upon some farms, and some upon nearly every farm. A few of them are, a lack of knowledge of the principles of feeding, so that foods are not rightly proportioned for the results desired. An attempt to do more than can be properly done, and a consequent neglect to do work in the proper season. This leads to extra cost for labor to destroy large weeds which could have been easily killed while small, and in future seasons to killing those that spring up from their seeds. It also results in crops not harvested when they are at their most favorable conditions, as the late-cut hay, the frozen vegetables or fruit, and other damaged products will testify.

The keeping of land which does not, either as pasture, mowing land, or woodland, or in hoed crops, pay a fair profit over the cost of manure, labor and seed, with fair wages to the farmer, is another bad leak of common occurrence. Again, cows that do not pay their keeping for more than nine months in the year, and horses whose days' work during the year does not amount to as much as their feed costs, are leaks that let the profits run away very rapidly. When these are stopped others can be easily named, but these are enough for once.

WEATHER AND CROPS.

Weekly Reports from Southern California Correspondents.

Crops Generally Harvested, and the Ranchers Waiting for Rain—Dry Plowing in Some Localities for Grain.

Following is the weekly weather crop bulletin of Southern California, published by the United States Weather Bureau, for the week ending November 13:

Hueneme (S. S. Mack)—The weather continues dry with occasional fogs. Corn-shelling is still in progress, and is being hauled to the warehouses as fast as shelled. Farmers are dry plowing.

Lancaster (James P. Ward)—Weather cold with considerable frost. Work has commenced on the Cull irrigation system. Water will be brought from Little Rock Creek. There will be seventeen miles of main ditches from twelve to twenty-five feet wide and two and a half to four feet deep. Three miles of ditch had been finished last Saturday, and it is expected to have nine miles completed by December 1. Rodeo de los Aguas Ranch (H. H. Denker)—Walnuts and winter apples are being gathered; yield and quality excellent. Lemon trees set out last year will yield about a quarter of a box of fine fruit this season. The prospect for sugar-beet culture is excellent.

Los Angeles (Germain Fruit Company, by Eugene Germain)—The dried fruit crop is all gathered, and rain is now needed. The quality of the products is very fine, and farmers were fortunate in having no rain to interfere with fruit drying.

Los Angeles (United States Weather Bureau, George E. Franklin)—The temperature ranged slightly below the average the first and latter part of the week; the remainder showed an excess. Highest temperature, 65°; lowest, 40°. Occasional high fogs occurred during the night. The local markets are well supplied with fruits and vegetables.

West Vernon (S. McKinley)—Fogs prevailed in the morning, clearing off by 9:30 a.m. Vegetables are looking well. The late potato crop is in full bloom and doing nicely. String beans and roasting-eat corn were never better. Lima beans are in excellent condition. The late pear crop is still on the tree; will pick about the 1st of December. Oranges are turning; the crop is light, but of extra large size.

Monrovia (T. J. Barnes)—Crops are about all gathered, and the farmers are waiting for rain to begin plowing and planting. Fine weather and cooler nights prevail. Pomona (John Wasson)—Weather slightly cooler, but no frost. Fruit all cared for, except grapes, which are still being crushed at the winery, and some shipped away. Oranges are coloring.

Riverside (W. E. Keith)—The rain crop is nearly all in and it has been a very heavy one. The temperature has been decidedly above the normal for the past eleven November. Maximum temperature, 84°; minimum, 38°.

Santa Ana (H. A. Peabody)—Fogs during the night and morning have delayed peanut and bean drying. Oranges are looking well but the crop will not be as large as last year. Dry plowing has begun in some localities.

Tustin (E. D. Buss)—A desert atmosphere without wind prevailed several days, changing on the night of the 11th to a heavy wet fog. Crops are about all gathered. Some dry plowing for barley is being done. Temperature ranged from 40° at 7 a.m. to 76° at noon.

San Diego (United States Weather Bureau, M. L. Hearn)—A hot dry westerly wind prevailed on the 9th and 10th, remaining the rest of the week temperature about normal. Foggy and cloudy on the Coast until about 10 a.m. No plowing has been done; farmers are waiting for rain. A large number of fruit trees will be planted this winter, and a large area of new land will be broken for grain. Fruit is getting scarce, especially grapes and figs.

OETTAH.

A STORY OF THE PIUTE AND INDIAN WAR OF 1876.

By Gen. O. O. Howard.

(CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES—COPYRIGHT, 1891, BY S. S. McCLURE.)

OETTAH lived in a wild place, rightly named "Malheur," which means misfortune.

Oetah's father, years before, had been mortally wounded in battle. In his last moments he had given the child, then 3 years old, to his brother Egan, the new Piute chief. It was this battle that ended the old Piute war. The white men, as they finally did in every struggle with the red men, had conquered.

The new chieftain gathered the straggling remnants of his tribe. He addressed them with bitter calmness:

"The white men take my land; they drive off my ponies; they kill my children! My brother takes the war-path. Many sons the red men and the white men fight. Many soldiers, many braves, die. The war chief, my brother, is slain. The young men are buried by the creek. Egan fights no more. White man says: 'Peace; take a home at Malheur. There is good land, good water, white man's food. The red man and white man eat bread together.' Egan is done."

So, from the borders of Nevada the poor half-clad Indians were marched off to the "Malheur," and the Indian reservation was begun.

Oetah remembered that ride. A lot of bundles were put upon a mouse-colored pony's back and tied on, making him look like a young elephant with legs too small; then she was perched on the top and fastened to the load by a strap drawn tightly across her lap. She was afraid, but her uncle laughed at her and gave her a little whip. She soon became mistress of the situation, and when the pony stopped to eat she would swing her lash around and hit him in some tender spot, wherever the bundles gave her a chance to strike.

At Malheur, where I first saw Oetah, she was living in her uncle's lodge. It was ten years since her ride on the mouse-colored pony, so that she was now 13. She was short and fat, and had chubby cheeks. Her hair and eyes—well, they were Indian hair and eyes—dark, deep and shiny, eyes dark, deep and shiny. She wore a pretty manta dress, which fell below her brown moccasins, and a red blanket, which had a way of creeping up to the top of her head on slight provocation, while one side was sliding around over her mouth. She was really the freshest and prettiest Indian girl I ever saw. Her jetty hair, braided behind, was as smooth as satin in front, and her brown face, reddened by her shawl's reflection and warmed by her young blood, was positively handsome. The stern Egan smiled upon her, and the young braves treated her with marked attention and respect. I found she could read a little, sew and cook.

About three years after she was married to a young chief of the Nevada Piutes. I had seen him on my visit to Malheur; a bright fellow, who cut his hair short and dressed like a young white farmer. His "Boston" name was Leigh. His sister Sarah was often with the Malheur Piutes, a girl of great intelligence and character; she acted as interpreter, and taught the other girls many things. Leigh, too, could read and write a little.

Oetah went to Nevada with Leigh, but she often made the long journey, pony-back, to visit her uncle at Malheur. She was with Egan, and another frightful Indian war broke out. It began, between some Shoshones and white men in Idaho, about a hundred miles east of Boise City.

After the first conflict the Shoshones rushed on toward the West, robbing and killing white people all along, and always gathering numbers from the Indian tribes they passed, until finally they arrived at the Malheur.

That afternoon Egan was asleep in his lodge. At the door the Too-at—the old medicine man—was sitting on a box, chanting his wild prophecies to the women who were seated on the ground. Some were tending their babies, some making "manta dresses," others doing head embroidery on deer-skin coats and moccasins. Oetah sat nearest the old medicine man, finishing a pair of moccasins for her husband, and listening intently to the weird chanting of the old Indian: "Time nears. The Indians will rise from the dead, sweep all white men from the land."

"Let the Too-at say how many suns!" said Oetah.

"Oh, the Too-at knows; the Too-at will tell by and by."

While the dreamer talked Oetah was thinking. She dreaded war—it meant murder. She hoped that her teacher might be spared. She didn't want him to die. Leigh had always worked with white men and they had paid him wages. She could not see why her people wanted such white men killed.

Suddenly a strange, persistent, far-off noise, like the continuous whooping of men and women, interrupted their talk and work. It seemed to come from the direction of the Cascade Mountains, which raised its lofty crest above them toward the North.

There came into view a number of young men on horseback. Egan was evidently angry. As soon as the young men saw him they became silent, respectful, dismounted and approached the people now standing up in no little excitement. The babies cried, and the old Too-at was adding his shout to the din: "Oke—Oke sun! this is day!"

The leader of the young men spoke to Egan: "Egan, be war chief! Buffalo-Horn is dead, white men killed him. The Shoshones are mad. The war-path is full."

Egan answered grimly: "I have fought the white man. It is no good. My word is given to him. The Shoshones will be destroyed."

Then the brave Egan answered. But the old prophet cried shrilly: "Egan is no coward! Oke—Oke sun! this is day!"

Thus the brave Egan answered. But the old prophet cried shrilly: "Egan is no coward! Oke—Oke sun! this is day!"

PAPER CHASING.

A CAPITAL OUTDOOR GAME FOR BOYS.

By Walter C. Dohm.

(CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES—COPYRIGHT, 1891, BY S. S. McCLURE.)

OR those boss boys who have not the strength, or the inclination to play foot-ball, there is no other game that may be indulged in with so much pleasure and benefit as paper chasing.

More real exercise may be got in less time from running than from any other sport, except sparring, and the former has the very great advantage that it may be practiced in the open air.

The objection which most boys have to running is that it lacks excitement. I grant that trotting a dozen times or more around a quarter-mile cinder path may be monotonous, but when the three or four miles covered is over a pleasant stretch of the open country, embracing field, wood, and meadow land, following a trail laid with intent to deceive, and when there is added besides the element of competition roused by the desire of each runner to be "first in," the sport is one that should appeal to every lad. Paper chasing, however, is not as popular as it was a few years ago. This is due to the fact that 'cross-country racing has to a great extent supplanted the more enjoyable and healthful pastime.

Paper chasing, or hare and hounds, is, of course, simply another form of cross-country running, the difference being that in the latter there are no hares, and the course is fixed beforehand, instead of being left to the pleasure of the hares.

The stock-in-trade required for a paper chase is very simple, all that is necessary being a light canvas or leather bag with open mouth, which is hung over each hare's shoulders, and a quantity of paper for the "scent." The hares are allowed a start of from five to fifteen minutes, depending on the length of the chase and the character of the country. The allowance should always be sufficient to permit the hares to get well out of sight before the hounds start.

Every half dozen strides or so the hares should drop a small handful of the scent. The paper used should not be torn into small bits, as is usually done, but into strips about eight inches long. These are more conspicuous than the hares, and instead of being blown away by the wind, they curl round the grass and bushes, forming a very distinct trail.

As long as there is any scent left in the bags the hares must lay a fair and continuous trail. When the scent is exhausted, however, the bag is dropped.

The hare and the hound.

This is a signal to the hounds that their prey has started "home" on a "bee-line," and they are, of course, at liberty to follow likewise. The hares must surmount all obstacles over which they lay the trail. They may cross formidable streams and rubber-soled shoes complete the outfit for the paper-chaser.

Often both "slow" and "fast" packs start in pursuit. The slow pack receives a start on the fast of about one minute for each mile to be run. Each hound of the fast pack is his own master, and may follow the trail at whatever pace seems best to him. The members of the slow pack, however, must keep together until the "break" is ordered. They are under the direction of a master of the hounds and two whips. The master acts as a pacemaker, adapting his gait to that of the slowest hound, while the duty of the whips is to keep the stragglers to the pack. When the pack is reached where the hares have dropped the scent-bag, the master orders the break for home. Then the pack becomes fast. The master ceases to order, the whips leave the stragglers to straggle, and every one goes for home as straight and fast as he can. The "time" of the hares is that of the slowest of the pack. The first hound in reaches home fewer minutes after the hares than the last. The latter received the pack wins; otherwise the hares are the victors. Often the hares are required to gain some minutes on their original start in order to win.

Should the hares in their haste or through neglect fail to lay a fair trail, the run may be protested. The decision in this case is left to the master of hounds.

Whenever the nature of the course permits, the hares should lay a false scent. On the artfulness with which this is done depends the success of the hares and the confusion of the packs. By the use of a little judicious deception the hounds may be led to run hundreds of yards farther than the hares, and also to lose much valuable time. The hares, of course, should take turns in laying the false trails. For instance, at a cross-roads one hare continuing straight on lays the scent as faulty as he fairly can. The other turns to the right or left, dropping a very strong scent for fifty or a hundred yards, and then gradually making it fainter until it disappears altogether, after which he rejoins his companions by a short cut. The hounds come dashing along and seeing only the false trail—especially if the first handful or two of the real has been dropped in the ditch—follow headlong. When they get to the end they look right and left, and finally concluding that they have been hoaxed return to the junction of the roads to find the real trail. By way of variety, the real trail may be made faint at the next cross-roads and the false strong. Mindful of this last experience, the hounds will probably follow the latter and again come to grief.

I recollect one hare and hounds chase in which I took part a few years ago that terminated rather disastrously for the hares. After following the trail hotly about three miles we came upon one of the pair resting on the stump of a tree. He had turned his ankle and was suffering from a bad sprain. His companion, knowing that we would soon be along, and not wishing to spoil the afternoon's run entirely, had gone on ahead. We left two of our number to accompany the unlucky fellow home while we continued the chase, supposing, now that there was but one hare, that we would have no false trails to follow.

What was our surprise then, in crossing an extensive bit of meadow land on which was pastured a herd of cattle, to come suddenly to the end of the trail. We looked to the right and left, but no tiny bit of paper could we see that would give a clue to the direction in which the hare had disappeared. Certainly it was no false scent, for the country round about was so level that we could have seen the hare had he wasted the time necessary in laying it half a mile away. We spread out and covered every yard of ground for an acre. We had just arrived at the conclusion that the hare was playing a trick on us, when a faint hallooing attracted the attention of one of the sharper-earred of the pack. Three or 400 yards ahead of us was a big oak tree, the foot of which stood an angry bull, tearing up the ground with his horns. We looked, and soon saw what appeared to be a red flag waving from the tree-top. Arming ourselves with sticks and stones we approached cautiously, ready at any moment to retreat if the brute showed an inclination to fight. Evidently he considered our numbers—there were a dozen of us—too great, and he moved unwillingly away. In the top of the tree was the unfortunate hare. He lost no time in getting down. According to his story he had jumped the fence into the meadow, and was making tracks across when he heard a snort. Looking back he saw the bull with head down and tail up, charging him at full gallop. Behind him was the fence and safety, but there was no going back. Before him was the tree and he made for it. Luckily he had a good start, and the animal wasn't much of a sprinter, but the race was exciting and the hare won by an eye-lash only, as he put it, just having time to grasp a low-hanging limb and pull himself up into safety as the bull charged down beneath. He thought then that the beast would climb the tree after him. A few minutes later he had seen us looking for the trail, which in his haste he had neglected to lay. He endeavored by shouting and waving his red jersey to attract our attention. The wind was against him though, so it was some time before we heard him. He has taken part in lots of paper chases since then, but I don't think he ever wore red again when there was any chance of running on pasture land.

There is one charge that has been made against cross-country running in reply to which I want to say a word of defense. The sport is one that is most practiced in the cool weather of late fall and early spring. Because diseases of the throat or lungs have followed a paper chase in cool weather some people declare it dangerous and would condemn it. Such misfortune is not due to the sport, but to carelessness. Heavy coats are sure to follow any exercise that induces perspiration if the body is allowed to cool too rapidly. To prevent this when running is a simple matter. On no account on a cold day should one walk more than a few steps at a time, no matter how tired he may be. Jog or trudge home, no matter how slowly as long as it is a run. Wearing an all-wool undershirt will also prevent too rapid evaporation and the consequent sudden and dangerous reduction of the temperature of the body. Over the shirt may be worn a jersey or sweater; a pair of thick socks, knickerbockers, long worsted stockings and rubber-soled shoes complete the outfit for the paper-chaser.

THE FLOCKING OF BIRDS.

THE GATHERING OF THE FEATHERED ELANS.

By Dr. C. C. Abbott.

(CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES—COPYRIGHT, 1891, BY S. S. McCLURE.)

NOT even the owl is as much of a hermit as he appears. The little fellow that all summer long has slept by day in the hollow apple tree and hooted by night from the adjacent tree-tops, has a taste for company, and when two meet their hooting gives way to a varied range of lowly-murmured chattering very different from the conventional cries of owlism. Keep a pet one (and they are easily tamed,) and you will find them not only as wise as they look, but not averse to rough and tumble fun. But a few days ago in my wanderings I reached the bay of a river, long after sundown and pitched my little tent by the still light of a green wood campfire. Ejaculations were not smothered, but explosive, and the whole strange scene brought not one but three little red owls to the front. They were not afraid, and discussed my companion, the dog, and myself vigorously. They enjoyed the novelty, and all through the night their tremulous tones broke the stillness of the dense, dark woods. I dreamed of huge flocks of owls, such as no man ever saw, and was roused at dawn by a great rushing of wings that seemed dangerously close at hand. It was a flock of blackbirds.

I have already said that birds are social and whatever may have been the conditions at the dawn of bird-life, their gatherings now are purely pleasurable. I do not think any advantage to the individual can come of it, other than satisfying social impulses. Let us go back to the formation of those huge flocks, and give a moment's notice to another phase of a bird's existence. This, the recent paper, covers the whole ground: "Most birds, we are told, 'pair off' for all, till either one or the other dies." Dr. Brehm, the author of "Bird Life," is so filled with admiration for their exemplary family life as to be led to declare enthusiastically that true genuine marriage can only be found among birds." The initial point of flocking is there, that of mating; later the family keep largely together; toward the close of the summer the families of a neighborhood unite, and, urged by the approach of autumn, the birds of a whole river valley will merge into some two or three great flocks, and in such close companionship migrate; or wander to and fro from one feeding ground to another.

When did birds begin to flock? This has often been asked, but never can be told. A close study of this habit, as of many other bird-ways, points to the conclusion that it is a survival of a much more fixed one. There is now a vast deal of irregularity about it. Certainly the red-winged blackbirds, which form our largest flocks, are not all gathered in, and single ones, pairs, and half a dozen together, remain all winter scattered up and down the river valley. It is true of every other flocking bird. The majority keep up the old custom, but so many stand aloof in every instance that it might almost be said the custom is dying out.

Let it be borne in mind that I am writing of a single locality, the Atlantic seaboard of the Middle States, and of this region I am disposed to make the statement that man has so modified the land that bird-life is rapidly losing its one-time characteristic features. It is sad to think that birds have seen their best days, and what we now have left us as the chief charm of our outings is but a lingering remnant of the great concourse that not only filled the valley, but made glad the remotest parts and neglected no nooks or corners of the land. Making due allowance for travelers' exaggerations, it is still evident that we have, except of English sparrows, not one-half of the birds of some two centuries ago. Even though the flocks of red-wings may sometimes reach well into thousands, I have positive knowledge of much larger flocks than ever Wilson or Audubon chanced upon. In 1732 a flock of these birds appeared one September afternoon on the Crosswicks meadows "that shut out the sun and caused great concern among the farmers, who feared, if they came to the fields, every grain of wheat would be laid waste." Blackbirds then were feared and for years after, by reason of their numbers; and, seemingly, when in such flocks, they were far more bold than ever as individuals.

Why do they congregate in such numbers? It has been suggested that in early autumn their food was to be found only in limited localities, and they naturally drifted there, moved one and all, by the same cause. In other words, the upland fields, the spring-holes, the grassy nooks in old field corners, where they nested, offered nothing but shelter, and to stay longer than during summer meant to starve. The fact that scattered birds do frequent the nesting places contradicts this, and the food found in the meadows is not greatly different, and often too many gather in one spot for all to be fed. Whatever the bird, there seems to be nothing gained by flocking, and much is lost. It appears to be an inherited instinct that once a safeguard, and delight is now but a source of pleasure, but directly disadvantageous.

We are accustomed to look upon certain species of birds as flocking in autumn, and that others never do so. I am convinced that all were gregarious originally, but changes of environment have caused it to be relinquished; but it is astonishing to find that there are few birds that cannot be found at least "in loose companies," as it is commonly worded. In September the bluebirds occasionally fly in pretty compact flocks of fifty to one hundred individuals, and a company of twenty or thirty is a common occurrence. The common kingbird is another well-known species that flocks to some extent, and a third is the Baltimore oriole. I have seen the females and young of the preceding summer in flocks of certainly 100 individuals, and when on the wing they kept so well together as to merit being classed as a flock, rather than a semi-independent gathering. It is evident that such close association, as in the case of red-wings, of bobolinks, of rusty grackles, and other birds, could not occur if there was no power of communication, and no predetermination as to movement. I have yet to see a large flock of birds without guards perched in commanding outlook, and know from experience how difficult it is to outwit these sentinels. It has often been a dozen or more, and in some way there is a drawing of lots, and the particular spots are occupied. For nine successive summers a pair of red-wings built at the base of a button-bush, and year after year more and more nests were made until every spot was occupied for many a red-wing. In August the clan gathered, and, as a little flock that seemed cattered by day, but reassembled at sunset, these birds were a feature of the window for two weeks or more; then they disappeared. I never saw them again with a passing flock, but this is that they did. Suggestive as is every flock of birds, we really know but little about them. No naturalist has yet attributed the mystery of bird-life, and bird-slaughter has accomplished nothing. But no class of animals afforded so much pleasure wherever we rambled, however fixed the determination to observe a snake, a lizard, or a fish, let a bird come near and a knowledge of its turn to it! If it is a thrush in early June, or the Carolina wren at any season, and it breaks forth in song what power have we to turn a deaf ear? Though the problem at our feet may be almost solved, the rhythmic rush of a thousand wings overhead will draw us away; earth and its creeping creatures will pass from our mind; that moment the heavens are darkened by a flock of birds.

LAY SERMONS.

Do you not often wonder what is the trouble with men that the religion of Jesus Christ does not satisfy them? Here is salvation freely offered. Here is life immortal freely given. Here is ever-increasing knowledge proffered. Here a crown and a kingdom with no end. Here is purity, joy and glory, and peace and happiness in the life to come, where all sorrow and sighing shall flee away, and all tears shall be wiped from all faces, and the redeemed of the Lord shall come singing "The song of Moses and the Lamb." Here a religion that opens the door of the tomb, that makes us conquerors and more than conquerors over death through Him who hath loved us, takes from the grave its terrors, and from death its sting, and yet men turn their backs upon it; they lay hold upon the past; they seek to resurrect old, worn-out systems of morality, all good enough for this life, but which have no grasp upon immortality. Buddha lifted his disciples out of the worst sloughs of mechanism, but he did not lift them up to the hope of eternal life, nor to the holiness and happiness of the Christian heaven. Which is the more delightful to the earnest, thoughtful seeker after truth—the doctrine of reincarnation, or the doctrine of salvation through Christ? Which teaching holds in itself the divinity of hope—that which teaches that with death the soul may pass into the body of beast or reptile, or into some other human body, with propensities more groveling than your own, or that which fills our hearts with the blessedness of the promise, "Today thou shalt be with Me in Paradise?"

The great difference between Christianity and other so-called religious systems is this—it opens before us a direct path to a higher life, and it puts the soul of the believer at once in touch with Divinity. Today a dweller upon the earth, tomorrow a resident of that "house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." Today clothed upon with the flesh, tomorrow all flesh garments laid aside, and the unfettered spirit breathing celestial airs. Again, Christianity makes the way of life so plain that "a wayfaring man, though a fool, need not err therein." How divinely are we bidden: "Come unto me all ye that are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest." How comforting the assurance offered: "Him that cometh unto me I will in no wise cast out." And yet human nature says: "Let us find some other way. Let us go away back into the dead, old past, over mouldy and crumbling creeds, over the rotten teachings of ages, and upon some of those systems that the world threw away ages ago as not sufficient for their immortal needs. Anything, anything but Christ and Him crucified! I don't like to humble myself so. I want a religion that will let me save myself. I should rather be reincarnated a thousand times if in the end I could lift myself up to my highest ideal." That is human nature. That is the voice of the proud and unregenerate human heart—the voice of the sinner rebelling against God and the pardon that is offered through His son.

But supposing that we could get to heaven that way only think what we should miss. The song of the redeemed; the alleluia; the Lamb that was slain; the sense of forgiving love; the eternal brotherhood of Christ, and the spiritual kinship through Him with the Father.

Again, which accords best with the testimony of our senses, that Christian's Bible which teaches "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth," as that which maintains the vacuity, unreality and illusive nature of nature. Whose just proposition is, "Naught is everywhere and always, and is full of illusion. All compounds are perishable." The final object of Buddhism is Moksha Nirvana, or the deliverance of the soul from all pain and delusion. The Buddhist believes that psychosis is broken by preventing the soul from being born again. This is attained by purification from even the desire of existence. This is the faith that today, in the broad light of the nineteenth century, hundreds in this Christian land are trying to build upon.

How much more comforting; how much more of our senses; how much more exalting that faith in Christ which give us all things—the promise of the life that now is and that which is to come, which gives us an ever-present Helper, a divine Redeemer, able to cleanse us from all sin, to remove our infirmities and to exalt our lives until they are one with His. The world may fight against Christ and seek to supplant His teachings, but Christ will triumph. All the world's isms will yet be buried in forgetfulness, and as universal as the ever-moving winds will become His teachings, and by them and through them will the race be redeemed and exalted.

Sunflower Seed.

(Exchange.)

It is not always convenient to detach the seed from the flower heads after they are dry, and this fact makes the use of sunflower seed as food for poultry, objectionable to some, their being so impregnated that will "shell" the seed from the heads. The better plan is to cut the heads up with a spade into small pieces, and allow the hens to pick the seed off for themselves.

We noticed the other day on a fruit stand in Los Angeles, oranges, lemons, apples, pears, peaches, guavas, plums, prunes, figs, strawberries, blackberries, raspberries, bananas, grapes, pineapples, pomegranates, quinces and persimmons. What other place except Southern California can show all these fruits, ripe and fresh, in the market at this season of the year! —(Riverside Press.)

CHAPTER IX.

Kathleen obeyed. After the ladies had left the balcony Eric again joined them. "If you will kindly wait just there by the fountain," he said, pointing toward a charming aquatic design in bronze, whose spouts of water had caught the slant sunbeams and turned to liquid gold. "I will at once call you and Monsieur to meet. And remember, please, we call him 'Monsieur,' he prefers it."

"And I am to speak with him in French?" asked Kathleen, somewhat nervously.

"If you wish, I suppose you do not speak Saltravian?"

"Heavens, no!" she exclaimed, still more nervously, and not noting the dry twinkle in Eric's eyes.

"The King will probably address you then in French. But if you prefer English he will accommodate you. It is one of the great self-delusions of his reign that he speaks English at all reputably."

Here Mrs. Kennard broke in, with her blithest laugh: "Oh, my dear child speaks French very prettily." And as Eric departed with a bow, she turned to Mrs. Madison, who had just rejoined her, and said, in a voice made purposely loud enough for him to hear: "What a delightful man this Mr. Thaxter is! No wonder the King likes him so!"

Clarimond, who did everything with grace, soon had himself presented to Kathleen and her mother, precisely as if he were some ordinary friend of Eric's, with whom the latter had chanced to be moving among the paths. "And it all went off so easily," as Mrs. Kennard remarked afterward.

"Before we knew it, Kathleen, he had shaken hands with both of us, and had asked you if you didn't want to go with him and see the carp feed in the great marble basin of the grandes eaux."

Kathleen and the King walked side by side, it is true, but they only paused for a moment to watch the carp dance, afterward passing on to where the terraces of the palace dropped grandly down to an artificial lake, and a hundred windows blazed like huge diamonds or rubies where the western sun smote them. Above, on the long marble balustrade, two or three peacocks were perched, one pure white as the sculptured stone itself; and below, half way between the lily-pads and the rustic landing, floated a few stately swans.

Somewhere behind one of those radiant windows the Princess of Brindisi sat, and near her was Bianca d'Este. It was quite probable that the King knew he risked matrimony, and that during his present saunter with the young American lady whom he sought to know. Since the arrival of his mother he had not presumed thus publicly to associate himself with any new foreign acquaintance. If Kathleen had been a man, her discretion might have had its limits. At present, there in her palatial abode, with her cherished Bianca to share the humiliation, whether real or fancied, this disreputable became a boundless disgust.

"It pleases me greatly, mademoiselle," the King was saying, in his flexible and almost native French, "that you should so care for Saltravia after so brief a stay here."

"How can one help caring for it?" returned Kathleen, as they paused on one of the velvet-swarded terraces. Looking sideways, across her shoulder, she perceived that the same group which had accompanied the King before they met, were following him now, at a distance respectful and discreet. She perceived, too, that her mother and Mrs. Madison were also not far behind them. This was possibly what her companion wished. It struck her that he was a gentleman, this comely and fascinating monarch, who wished many things most decisively, and who had the art of making his desires operative with the same cool ease that he brought to the touching of an electric bell and the summoning of a needed lacquey.

"The weather here," she continued, "is always so enchanting." And then she looked into Clarimond's face with one of those smiles that his dislike of common-place women had even thus quickly caused him to feel was the harbinger of something at least quickened by pleasure. "I am already sure, monsieur," she added, "that la pitre et le beau temps are subjects upon you control at pleasure; you keep the first amiably exiled, and you allow the last, like one of your ancestors' court jesters, to do all the genial things that it pleases."

Clarimond laughed. "No, mademoiselle," he replied, "you overrate my powers. I am no more sensible than that far-away English-King who commands the sea to obey him, or that Persian one who whipped it with rods."

For the first time Kathleen looked full into his face. Let it be forgiven her when recorded that the curious complexity which we call a woman's heart throbbed strangely. No woman was ever really the lover of two men at the same time, but many a woman had believed that she could have loved and passionately, devotedly loved some man whom she has known while still loving the object of her first allegiance. Perhaps it was this way with Kathleen; perhaps the fact of Clarimond's great rank wrought with her more than she would have wished to tell. Women are shaped from self-contradictions, not because they are in the main weaker than men (it will some day be scientifically disclosed, no doubt, that they are stronger where men are weak, and weaker where men are strong), but because millions of years have elapsed in which they have served as slaves to the alleged lords of creation. Yet is this, after all, a true philosophy of things, and is not a stern wrong done to Kathleen when we assert of her that she felt one which more disarrayed than a like environment would have rendered one of the other sex, this nearness of sovereignty being feminine, not masculine? Few men, if history does not err, have resisted the blandishments of queens. And Clarimond, if he dealt in no blandishments, bore himself at all times with that magnetic demeanor which would have made his greatness quite secondary in the eyes of not a few women on whom he might have chosen benignly to beam.

Lightly he now pursued, with his gaze fixed upon Kathleen's face, a way that somehow belied the gravity of his words: "Oh, yes, the weather here is my only rebel and my only traitor. I've an idea about it; I've decided that it is only endurable when we don't think of discussing it. Am I not right, and do we not respect it when, like Caesar's wife, it is above suspicion?"

Laughing, enjoying the pleasant, Kathleen threw back her head. Now, for the first time, had she a moment of real, vivid, social distraction.

"I resent this rebellion, monsieur," she said, "on the part of your Saltravian weather. Still, as yet I've no personal grudge against it. When a rainy day comes I shall ask you to give me some parliamentary edict, that I may read it to the insurgent elements, signed with your royal seal."

"Have you as much faith in my power as that, mademoiselle?" he asked, drawing closer to her. "Assure you I am a very small sort of a king."

"You're the first that I've ever met," she answered, gathering boldness; "if they are all like you, monsieur, I shouldn't be afraid to meet any of them—not even the Czar of Russia."

"Russia!" he said, his sunny face clouding a little. "Do you care for that country?"

"It's romantic to us who do not know it. It's so far away, monsieur, and so—"

"Barbarous," he supplied, a little harshly. "Yes, being the most uncivilized of European countries, Russia is hence the most romantic. Her very patronymics, with their bristling thickets of consonants, seem like lairs for the leopards of assassination, and one need only hear the words, 'Moscow' and 'Odessa' and 'Volga' to feel as if one had been assisting at a conspiracy of nihilists."

He ended these words almost sternly, but at once his face lightened and his voice grew kind.

"Pardon me, mademoiselle," he pursued, "I try to be without rancor. Usually I succeed in showing none. Of all times this is the last when I should remember them. Shall I tell you why?"

"If you wish, monsieur?"

"Then my reason is this: That I read in your face, in your manner—will you pardon me for saying so—the evidence of a sorrow which does not consort with your unquestionable youth, and—will you still pardon me—with your very extraordinary beauty."

"A sorrow?" faltered Kathleen, dropping her eyes. Then in another minute she lifted her gaze and said firmly: "You are right, monsieur. I have a sorrow—a great sorrow."

For what seemed to Kathleen a strangely long time there was silence between herself and the King. She waited for him to speak, and at last he did so in a voice full of sombre repression.

"If it were a sorrow that I could lighten, or in any way appease, mademoiselle, I would so gladly do my best to help you."

Once more their eyes met, and Kathleen's lips trembled. "You are good," she hesitated. Then a flood of memory swept over her, and she continued: "We only came here, mamma and I, for a short visit. We are going tomorrow. Yes, tomorrow. We are going to—"

"Going?" shot in Clarimond, with an intonation that was at once flattery and reproach.

"Yes, monsieur; to Vallambrosa."

"Tomorrow?" He gave an impatient frown, and tossed his head. Then, as "It is she!" he exclaimed.

if a desire to control undue overflows of ardor, he went on: "May I not induce you to change your mind, mademoiselle? May I not induce you?" and for an instant he touched her wrist with his hand.

Kathleen shook her head. "Ah, monsieur," she murmured, "you will be good and not try to persuade me!" "Us?" he echoed. "Ah, your mother! I had forgotten her. And you, mademoiselle? You are bent on leaving Saltravia?" His face had flushed, and his gray eyes had kindled. "You must stay for a little while yet, you must stay!"

Kathleen smiled. "Is that a royal command?" she asked. "They tell me I must not remind you that you are a King; and yet—"

"Ah," he cried softly, "I will remind you, mademoiselle, that I am not only a King but a tyrant!"

"Monsieur!"

"Yes, yes; I mean it!" and he threw his walking-stick into the air with a grand show of semi-genial vehemence. "I tell you that I will not have it. Now you have reminded me that I am a King, you shall feel my power. I will defy your country—America, is it not?"

"Yes, and no. America and England both together, monsieur, for I was born—"

"Enough," and he waved his walking-stick once again. "I will defy America and England both. Luckily, Saltravia is an inland kingdom, and they can't come with iron-clads to get you, until—" He paused and looked intently at her, smiling, and yet with a sudden dubious, undecided gleam in his lucid eyes.

"Until," said Kathleen, secretly excited with a lovely rose at full bloom in either cheek.

"Until I have opened the ball with you at the palace next Thursday. If you accept precedent; if you will shock certain people; if it will immensely shock my mother, the Princess of Brindisi. But I vow to you that I shall not dance the first quadrille with the duchesses and arch-duchesses and princesses must do without me, provided you refuse this little request of mine. Now, will you refuse, or will you be kind and consent?"

She saw that he was greatly excited. She realized that unwittingly she had captivated him, a young man of about her own age, and as she was she herself with the power to love, even to worship. She could not, as a woman, fail to understand the tremendous honor that he paid her. For a moment she forgot Alonzo. This man was a king, and woman-like, she forgot the man she loved better than throngs of kings.

"Will you consent?" he persisted; and she scanned his face, thinking how manifold, how noble he looked, how every inch royal.

"Yes, monsieur," she answered, knowing well the exultant delight of her mother on learning of this brilliant honor, no matter what might be the stern disapprobation of the court.

Just then her mother's voice broke upon her ear. She started, half because the sound was not further away and half because it jarred so on her now pleased mood.

"My dear Kathleen—" her mother began.

But it was too late. Eric, slipping away from two or three ladies with whom he had been at odds in some gay argument, darted forward, but he also found that it was too late.

"Lonz," he said, catching his friend by the arm.

But Alonzo, who had arrived from Munich a day or two earlier than he had himself expected to come, pressed forward, seeing the King and never dreaming of whom else he was destined to see. He had secured two or three really superb pictures of the Bavarian capital, and was anxious to tell Clarimond of this trouvaille. As he reached the King's presence, however, he abruptly perceived the truth, recoiled, growing pale.

Clarimond noticed nothing, however. Kathleen thoroughly controlled herself, as did her mother. In a way they were both prepared for the meeting.

"My friend!" said the King, extending to Alonzo his hand. "You have returned sooner than I expected. Then there was a pause, after which Clarimond, with all his accustomed graciousness, continued:

"Let me present you, Lispenard, to these ladies, who are, I believe your countrywomen."

And at that point Alonzo quite lost his head. It seemed to himself, afterward, that while hurrying away he must have fallen there on the terrace before the palace, if Eric's arm had not strongly thrust itself within his own, and perhaps, too, if Eric's voice had not burst upon his singing brain.

"Lonz! Lonz!" this voice called to him, "You are disgracing yourself before the King."

"I can't help it. Let me get away."

"Lonz! Oh, very well, we're both getting away, it strikes me, as fast as we're able. Look here, now, Lonz, if I'd known you were coming—"

"Yes, Eric, I understand. Go right on. When we are at home we can talk it over."

At home they did talk it over. When Alonzo had heard everything, and when his mood was thoroughly calmer, he said with a kind of dogged dullness to Eric:

"I suppose it's all up with me. I might as well send in my resignation at once."

"Nonsense," replied Eric.

"What I did, you know, was a great breach of etiquette."

"The King isn't a slave to etiquette," still, I rushed off at scandalous haste. What would you do? Write him a letter and confess everything?"

"Yes," Erip said, after a reflective pause. "That's precisely what I would do, my dear friend. And if you want to sympathize with you, be as untruthful as you can manage."

"What do you mean, Eric?"

"Don't tell Clarimond how badly you behaved. That's poor girl."

"Ah, you'll allow that I behaved badly," said Alonzo, as he quitted the room to write his proposed letter.

Modini Wood gave one of his interesting and instructive pupils' recitals at his residence on Friday night. A long list of pupils, the greater part advanced, appeared, among them Miss C. Burnett, Mrs. J. S. Owens, Miss M. Baker and Messrs. Portway, Manning and Wallace.

Mr. Wood was assisted by Mrs. Masac and Mr. Tomaszewicz, both of whom played exceedingly brilliant.

Next concert.

On next Thursday evening Miss Bertha Penning will give a benefit at Turn Verein Hall. Miss Penning will sing the "Chanson-Boheme" from Carmen and "Dance Nightingale" by Tanbert. Miss Penning will be assisted by Mr. Piatti, piano; Mr. Tomaszewicz, violin; Mr. Stole, baritone; Mr. Wallace, basso; Mrs. J. Torrey, contralto, and Miss Josephine Williams. Miss Penning is a well-known Angeleno and has been, generous with her songs for others again and again, and it is but fitting she should have this pretty return compliment from others.

ETHEL STEWART'S BENEFIT.

Little Ethel Stewart, the bright little girl so well-known on the concert platform here, will take a benefit tomorrow night at the Operahouse. The little beneficiary has a right to expect a good audience for her own sake and also for the attractive programme offered. Among the prominent names of those assisting are Prof. Wilde, O. W. Kyles, Signor Musso, O. S. Taylor and the Euterpean Quartette.

NOTES.

Modini Wood has completed his arrangements for the organization of an opera company here, who will, beginning early in January, give a series of operas.

With the design for the new lithographic cover for the S. M. Club programmes, may come also a new name that will better tell the aims and objects of the club.

The good work done by the orchestra in the presentation of The Desert at the Ellis Club concert, will be even better appreciated when it is also known that as written the composition requires fifty instruments of varying power and structure.

The Euterpean Quartette will sing to-night at the praise service at Simpson Auditorium. These young men have sent out to the public a modest little prospectus of their abilities with a good counterfeit presentation of their faces, and selected clippings from the city press. The whole thing is in good taste, but in one or two instances the types have taken liberties with the grammar, a blemish that needs correction.

WILL MAKE A TEST CASE.

The Right to Tie Animals on the Street to be Tested.

Ex-City Engineer Fred Eaton set rather a singular criminal case in motion before Justice Owens of the Police Court, yesterday. Mr. Eaton sets forth in his complaint that two men named S. Mosby and William Geindie are in the habit of having their teams hitched in front of the Burdick Block on Second street, and as the building belongs to him, he thinks he has the right to object.

Both men were arrested and gave bail. They pleaded not guilty and propose to fight the case for all that is out. It is an important case in that it will settle the question as to whether people have the right to hitch animals on the street in front of property that does not belong to them. The case was set for trial on next Wednesday.

After the "Mac."

The police and police courts are making a hard fight against the "mac" of this city, and it is to be hoped that they will not rest until every one of them is cleaned out.

Almost every one of the rascals arrested during the past month has been convicted, and several of them are now serving terms in the city prison.

A French "mac" named Albert Berdome was before Justice Austin yesterday and withdrew his plea of not guilty and pleaded guilty. The Court wished to investigate his case further and fixed tomorrow at 2 o'clock as the hour to pass sentence. It is believed that the Court will give him a long term.

The King stared, for a moment, down at the carved agate of his cane-handle.

"Well," he at length said, smiling, "she was not merciful to you. But I did not believe her, and it struck me that mademoiselle did not believe her, either. You will think me a sad busy-body."

"You, monsieur!"

"But I should be glad to hear your version of the affair. Shall I tell you why?" He spoke with marked eagerness, and yet the instant that his eyes fairly met those of Alonzo he averted his look and went on in a quietly altered voice: "It is because the young lady, Mademoiselle Kathleen (is not that her name?) has greatly interested me."

"After a few seconds he repeated the words, 'greatly interested me.' 'Yes,' he soon continued, 'if you would tell me just what occurred I should feel most grateful for your confidence.'"

"Permit me, then, to tell you, monsieur," said Alonzo; and he at once began a recital in which he adhered to the strictest truth with what might be called a very-carnival of conscientiousness. Remembering Eric's harsh judgment of his conduct, he allowed this to cast upon his disclosures a self-accusing gloom. Ending, he said, "I fear that I have excited too much. I am conscious of this now, monsieur, though I once thought myself sternly wronged."

MUSIC AND MUSICIANS.

THE S. M. CLUB.

The S. M. Club will hold their regular meeting at the Ludlum Hall tomorrow evening. The committee consists of Mrs. J. D. Cole and Miss Fanny Willis; the composers being Parker, Paine and Chadwick, all Americans of note. Personal letters to the club will be read, and a fine programme is expected. Matters of business importance will be up for decision at the early meeting at 7:30.

AT ST. VINCENT'S.

A very elaborate programme of sacred music has been selected by the choir of St. Vincent's Church, corner Grand avenue and Washington street, for the services this morning. It being the feast of the dedication, Signor Ronandy will play the violin obligato throughout the mass; Charles S. Walton will sing the "Veni Creator"; Miss Katherine Kimball the "Et Incarnatus Est" and Miss M. Rohr the "Miserere."

The choir has selected the following musical numbers: Asperges Me, solo and Gloria, Vincent Novello's Kyrie and Gloria from Haydn's Imperial mass, Credo, Sanctus, Benedictus and Agnus Dei from Haydn's sixteenth mass; Veni Creator, Cherubini, Charles S. Walton; Offertory, Benjamin's Owens' Ave Maria, trio, Miss Katherine Kimball, Mrs. J. J. Schaller and C. S. Walton; postlude, March Pontificale, Dr. Stainer, Prof. T. W. Wilde. The Very Rev. Father A. J. Meyer will deliver the sermon. The services begin at 10:30.

Oh, this is a golden land, and in its haunts June often does "turn on her track," and leave the touch of her spell upon all things. We never need to cry:

Slower! Slower! Slower!

Let all your matchless beauty thrill My soul! Stretch out this day so bright, Far, far along midsummer's height, Till sunset back to sunrise glow, Sweet June! Be slow!

For long, long ago did June hear that cry, and here she was wedded to the cry and lingers always.

Licensed to Wed.

Marriage licenses were issued at the County Clerk's office, yesterday, to the following persons:

A. Bailey, a native of Germany, 50 years of age, to K. A. Golden, a native of Wisconsin, 38 years of age; both residents of this city.

W. T. Huey, a native of Arkansas, 39 years of age, a resident of Cerritos, to Portia McCormack, a native of Tennessee, 26 years of age, a resident of Downey.

James F. Dunphy, a native of Ireland, 34 years of age, to Eliza J. Trombly, a native of Nova Scotia, 35 years of age; both residents of this city.

IN OLD EGYPT.

"The Times" Man at the Island of Rhodes.

The Place Where Moses Was Found in the Bullrushes.

A Visit to Heliopolis, the Ancient City of the Sun.

The Virgin Mary's Tree—An Adventure with a Cat—Jacob's Well and Its Poisoned Waters—Historic Spots.

CAIRO (Egypt), Oct. 10, 1891.—[Special Correspondence of THE TIMES.] "Have you ever been to the Island of Rhodes?" asked a native donkey-boy the other day. The poor little fellow looked hungry, and I thought if the plaster he earned would do him any good I would try him. If one of these donkey-boys runs behind an hour, following you on your donkey, he is rich for a few days, for he has 4 cents to reward him for his pains. Well, I went to the Island of Rhodes, where Moses is believed to have been found in the bullrushes. They have the identical spot all marked off, and are perfectly satisfied that this is the place. Anyway, this island is pretty enough and novel enough for Moses's birthplace. It is situated out in the Nile, near the old city of Cairo, and is a most enchanting spot. The island is not large, only about a quarter of a mile long, and probably 100 feet wide. It has beautiful fruit trees of all kinds in bearing, such as oranges, bananas, lemons, etc. There are beautiful flowers, too, in greatest abundance. Here, too, cut through under the island is the old channel supposed to be about 3000 years old, which the ancients used to note the rise and fall of the Nile. The gauge is simply a solid pillar of granite set down in the channel, and surrounded by a basin of solid granite. It is still in use, and until late years the natives of Cairo would watch this gauge till the water reached the highest point, by which they knew the river had overflowed its banks and rendered the beautiful valley fertile again, and then throw an infant in the river as a sacrifice. It is still watched, but when the river reaches its highest point now, they hold a great religious service and sacrifice a goat. If you ask them if they do not think the Nile overflow comes from the melted snow and the rain of the mountains they will promptly answer, "No, saying it comes from the Great God, who has thus shown His pleasure by making this yearly overflow. There are a few old buildings of stone and granite situated on the island, and they look old enough to have been built in the time of Moses, or before, for that matter. Some of them are tumbling down, and these old ruins, with their marble floors and porches, taken in contrast with the beautiful flowers, the luscious fruits and the mysterious Nile on either side, make a most enchanting picture and one well worth coming to see. I did not want to leave it, for sitting under one of the lovely shade trees, on an old porch, with the Nile flowing quietly at my feet, and the cool Mediterranean breeze blowing in my face, all the better feelings of my nature were awakened, and I felt restful and happy.

The other day we took a carriage and drove to Heliopolis, the ancient City of the Sun. The best authenticated reports place this city at the rather advanced age of 4000 years. At present there only remain the walls which originally surrounded the city and the obelisk. The walls are built of regular masonry, about six feet in height and two feet thick. They are about 300 yards long on each side of the city. The obelisk is the most attractive thing out there, by far. It is one single block of red granite, sixty feet high and four feet square at the base. This obelisk is situated in the center of the city of Heliopolis, and seven miles from Cairo. It was brought from Assouan, the first cataract on the Nile, where there is still a great quarry of this fine granite. With our modern ingenuity, I suppose we could erect this massive block of granite, but floating it down the Nile and raising it would seem to an ordinary observer an impossible task.

It is on the way to this old city that we passed the Virgin Mary's tree, where these people firmly believe Mary rested with the infant Jesus during their stay in Egypt. Whether it is true or not, they certainly reverence it as such, and no native enters the gateway leading to the tree without first washing his hands and face in the stream near it and saying to the keeper, "God be with you." This old tree has most all the bark peeled off, and many limbs broken off piece by piece by tourists. The tree is very large, and as a matter of fact, was planted in 1848, but in the same spot where the old one stood. It stands alone, no other tree of any description being near except fruit trees. It is a sycamore. It is held in as much reverence by the natives, and, in fact, by many English and American tourists, as the old Coptic Church situated in Old Cairo. This is the church where it is believed Mary and the infant Jesus dwelled while in Egypt. It is old enough, sure. Built of stone, and differs from the many interesting old Mosques in the city by having an underground room and underground passages. At the end of one of these passages is a kind of chair cut out of the solid rock forming the wall, and in this identical spot, they hold, Mary sat. It is very touching to notice the natives as they approach this spot. They assume an air of deepest reverence, and stand quietly with bowed heads and folded hands, and show plainly that it is no matter of mere play with them. The walls of this old church are almost covered with mother of pearl and ivory cut in little squares, triangles and various other shapes, and then inlaid on the walls. The pieces are nicely fitted together, and I presume were each one cut out by hand as these people do now in making this kind of work. I visited a manufactory where this work was being done on tables, chairs, bric-a-brac, etc., and the only tool the workman used was an old flat steel file. He would lay the small piece down on a piece of wood, and file away at it till it fitted to suit him. Some of the pieces are less than one-eighth of an inch square. They do almost perfect work in this line and draw a salary of about 15 cents a day. It is very common furniture here, but would be worth a pile of money in America.

I neglected to say that this old Coptic church can only be reached by winding through streets many of which are less than three feet wide, and by climbing down old stone steps and through narrow gateways. It is entirely surrounded by old stone buildings, and the natives still hold services in it. You see these natives are Mohammedans, and as such do not believe that Jesus Christ was an impostor, but that He was one of the prophets. They believe, however, that Mohammed was a greater one, and that is why they "turn their faces toward Mecca" (where Mohammed is buried) always, in going through their public and private devotions.

On our return from the Virgin's tree we were driving along wondering what we would do next, and Jim Corley, who was with us, got into devilment. It was like this: You know the ancients held the cat as a very sacred animal, and to this day are as superstitious about it as the can possibly be. Well, Jim can imitate a cat till an old Thomas, even in his declining years, could not distinguish, could it? It was his Maria or not. Our driver was an Egyptian. He was sitting with his back to us, and Jim gave a "yeow!" which sounded as if a cat had got caught under the wheels. Well, you should have seen that Egyptian. He at once brought the carriage to a standstill and hopped down to find his cat. I'm sure he thought of all the plagues in the universe by the expression on his face. "Pon my word, the tassel which hung limp from his little red turban wriggled and squirmed, and finally stood up on end. When he saw it was a joke he wasn't angry, but was glad enough to find he hadn't killed a cat.

Jacob's Well is another thing of great religious interest in the vicinity of Cairo. In fact, it is interesting to everyone from its peculiar construction. It is about 350 feet deep, and for the first 150 feet, especially, is most wonderfully built. It is square, the walls being built of immense stones, some of which are six feet long and four wide, and one foot thick, and these stones are set up on edge. The square opening is probably twenty feet square. There is a narrow passage way around the outside of the wall, winding round and round till it reaches the distance of 150 feet from the top. Here there is a large room thirty feet square, the well being in the center. From this distance down to the water it is like any ordinary well, except it has steps to the bottom. What this room is for is beyond comprehension, unless for the tomb in one corner, supposed to be Joseph's tomb. Jim had to have a piece of the headstone, of course. Just what Jacob did with this well, that it should bear his name, is also unknown, but I presume he drank out of it. The water at present is not in use, as on several occasions dead dogs, cats, etc., have been found in it. It was this well, too, in which poison was thrown during the late war, for the purpose of poisoning the English soldiers, whose fortifications are still there. An Arab found it out in time to prevent the poisoning of the soldiers, and at once reported it. He is now old, but has a good good pay, and a letter from the Queen of England complimenting him, and stating that he shall never be turned out as long as he lives. What a pity some of the office-seekers in America could not find a poisoned well, somewhere, and report it!

THE EAST SIDE.

Funeral of Mrs. Plant—The Social Outlook—General Notes.

The funeral of Mrs. Thomas Plant who died Thursday night took place yesterday afternoon from the Bridges' Block, where the deceased and her husband have resided for some time. The services, which were quite brief, were conducted by Rev. J. H. Phillips. At the close of his appropriate and touching remarks a large number of friends and neighbors of the deceased followed the remains to Evergreen, where the interment took place. Mrs. Plant has long been an invalid. Her husband who has ever been very marked for the care and attention expended ministering to her comfort, has, besides grief at his bereavement, to bear an extra load in that some unduly interested person, caused his wife's death to be reported and an inquest held, notwithstanding the certificate of attending physicians and family druggist.

The past week has been a quiet one in social circles, the few parties given all being small and of a private and select character. On Friday Mrs. McGraw, chaplain of the W. R. C., entertained her sister officers, of the corps at her home on North Workman street, and the same evening a most enjoyable social was given by the ladies of Dr. Jenkins's church, there being a large attendance from all the Protestant denominations. The coming week gives promise of greater activity, the most important event being, probably, the home talent presentation of an original opera at Campbell's Hall on Tuesday evening. Some of the best known society young people, all members of the Quivver Club, will take part, and a crowded house is expected.

Nat Prescott leaves for San Francisco tomorrow, and will make his home in that city. Mrs. George Weeks opened her hospitable parlors on Friday evening to entertain her fellow members of Purity Temple, Pythian Sisters. The evening passed harmoniously, and at 11 p.m. the party dispersed.

The Supervisors.

At the meeting of the Board of Supervisors, yesterday, a large number of bids for the five new bridges, recently advertised, were received, opened and taken under advisement.

Upon motion of Supervisor Davis, the sum of $300 was appropriated for the use of the roadverber of Clearwater district for the purpose of clearing away the debris from the bridge across the old San Gabriel River at the Compton and Clearwater crossing.

Upon motion of Supervisor Cook, the request of Justice M. G. Little of Norwalk for an appropriation with which to pay the rent of his courtroom, was denied.

Upon motion of Supervisor Davis, it was resolved that the board shall visit the Pico and Washburn crossings bridges on Wednesday next.

San Diego Bank Suspension.

Councilman Lyons of San Diego visited Los Angeles yesterday and was interviewed by a Times reporter regarding the bank suspension in that city.

"I am satisfied the bank will come out all right," said Mr. Lyons. "I am satisfied that they will resume business very soon, and will be able to pay dollar for dollar. The bank has done more for San Diego than all the others put together, and the people will stand by it."

The directors were not given a chance to save the bank. I know of my own knowledge that at least one of them would have had $200,000 in the vaults of the bank within twenty-four hours if he had known the state of affairs. The whole thing is unfortunate, but I am satisfied that the bank will come out with clean hands."

Though the sun shines brightly and gives us almost a summer warmth at noonday, we are reminded by the rapidly shortening days that the holiday time is almost upon us, and already we are questioning what our gifts to those whom we wish to remember at Christmas shall be.

Christmas-giving should not be made burdensome, but our gifts should be prized for the loving thoughtfulness which they represent and the friendship to which they give expression. I think that the gifts which are the handwork of the giver should be the most prized, although where the one who bestows the gift has no time for work of this kind a purchased gift is eloquent of the love and kindness which it is intended to express.

It is well in advance of all work to make a complete list of the friends to whom one wishes to send some token of the season and then estimate the amount which may be set aside for Christmas purchases. After this has been done it will be an easy matter to determine the gifts which shall be made or purchased, and everything may be done systematically without going beyond the designated amount.

I will, for the benefit of such of my readers whose purse may be limited, but who yet can command sufficient leisure to make many a Christmas souvenir, mention a few pretty trifles which are not difficult of construction, and do not require any expensive outlay. Says a contributor to The Home Maker:

The dainty sachet, which has now an important part in the uses of daily life, comes next in grade to the card. For a writing-desk or portfolio, a suitable shape is that of an envelope. Take an ordinary envelope as a model. Cut a piece of card-board the size and shape of the address side, and four triangular pieces like the divided laps. Cover each of these first with soft muslin or cheese-cloth, and then with light-colored India silk or satin. The laps may alternate in color, pink and blue, gold and brown, etc. Make a flat sachet of soft muslin with a layer of wadding between, sprinkled with perfumed powder. Put this in the silk envelope with a piece of silk above it the color of the back. Fold the laps together and press flat. Stitch a narrow ribbon to the point of the upper lap, and draw the whole, tying in a pretty bow where the four meet.

Across the address side write in liquid gilt and fancy lettering a sentiment—"Remembrance," "Merry Christmas," "Four new Letters."

The best sachet powders are violet, orris, heliotrope, Spanish leather, and peau d'Espeigne; the latter is the newer and very delicate. Long, narrow sachets to fit bureau drawers are made of thin layers of wadding, sprinkled with powder, with an over-covering of China silk; bright yellow, light blue, and pink, or delicate green. The flat surface is tufted at intervals with bits of narrow ribbon to match the shade of silk. Sachets to hang with skirts of dresses are made in the same way, long and narrow; those to place with the folded bodice are shorter.

A new idea for a sachet is to take a piece of gros-grain or satin ribbon, sash width, and make an extra bit of ribbon the width of the sachet, and put between the edges on the other side. It is well to have the fringe double on both sides and long enough to turn the point with fullness. The sachet is fastened by a button-hole over white German cord, or silver or gold cord. A fringe of the edges finished with star-stitches, in silk.

The small rolls or flat sachets of silk or linen with fringed ends, tied about with button loops and ends of narrow ribbons, have been used for a long time, but are very nice for glove-box or handkerchief case.

Cushion sachets to stand on the bureau are made of circles of silk filled with perfumed wadding, drawn together at the top in tomato, orange, or melon shape.

A flat case for postal-cards or unanswered letters is made of double cloth, lined with silk or satin, with ribbon strips fastened across a little loosely. By making the inner back a pocket, the case may be for photographs or cards.

The pretty leaf-shaped doilies are welcomed by a home-maker who prides herself on the daintiness of her table. The four-leaved clover, pond-lily, nasturtium, grape and maple are favorite shapes. The edge of the leaf is worked first in skeleton, the veining done in outline, in white or delicately-tinted silk. The finish is a strong button-holing over white German cord, or silver or gold cord. The foundation for the leaves is white satin jeon, or stout butcher's linen. Press the work on the wrong side, when finished; then cut the cloth from the back. The effect is beautiful. The jeon costs 90 cents a yard, which makes a dozen doilies; the German cord comes at 15 cents a skein of six yards, 35 cents for the gold or silver cord. The latter is warranted to launder.

A bureau scarf of silk bolting-cloth, or sheer muslin, with tiny embroidered roses in Dresden colors, powdered over the surface, is a present. A fringe of lace is put across the ends. A pin cushion to match, and a few convenient toilet bits of porcelain, would make the dressing table complete.

Baskets always good presents. From the pretty bon-bon case to the waste-paper or wood basket. They cost but little, and when painted with enamel color, light blue, green, pink, or white, with satin ribbon bows are beautiful. A flat, square basket with top painted in violet tint, lined with violet satin, a bunch of artificial violets tied on top with satin ribbon the same shade and filled with rose-colored candies, would be a greeting for Christmas day. Line the basket with rice-paper before filling with confections.

All of the articles mentioned are dainty and inexpensive presents, and where simply a token of remembrance is desired they are all that is required, and where an expression of tender friendship they will be most acceptable and be prized far beyond their mere money value.

AN OPEN LETTER!

VERY IMPORTANT!

To Those Who Have Learned the Lesson in . . .

GEOGRAPHY

And all others interested, I wish to say a few words further regarding the East Whittier property. A good many have made inquiries, some have purchased, but we still have choice locations. Those who come first will get the choice. We expect many eastern people here to locate during the winter. There is no question as to the richness of the soil and the beauty of location, or to its adaptability to orange raising, and it is pronounced by experts the very choicest of lemon land. Lemons and Oranges are without question the wealth-producing fruits of Southern California, and the one who has ten acres or more in bearing orchards of these fruits has a fortune, not for today but for the lifetime, continually increasing; better than a settled annuity. The mesa land on the southern slope of the Puente Hills, from the Rincon Gap eastward, beautiful, rich, sheltered, warm in winter, cool in summer, is the garden spot of Los Angeles county and Southern California; Whittier and East Whittier the choicest of the choicest. The magnificent East Whittier water system, with a capacity of 20,000,000 gals. daily now carrying 5,000,000 gals, makes the future of this tract of land assured. The fountain artesian wells of the company have just been measured and show a variation of only 2 per cent. from their flow when first open, establishing the permanency of the flow. For the present the price of the East Whittier tract is $200 per acre with water, and you get a clean title to both. The terms are liberal, one quarter down, balance in one, two and three years at 7 per cent. We do not sell to speculators, only to those who will improve, thus insuring the best class of people. The East Whittier tract is close to schools, both graded and primary, and to the Whittier Academy, just opened with most promising outlook; best of teachers and good attendance. A Friends' Church, with fine buildings and the most prosperous and largest society in Southern California. An M. E. Church, with a large and growing society and fine building. Also a Baptist society. Here you have all the advantages of suburban life and society, and a chance to make a beautiful home at low cost. Come and see the property, and it will please you.

Very sincerely yours,

A. L. REED, Gen'l Mgr.

DELTA GAMMAS ENTERTAINED

Last Friday evening Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Matthews of University Place hospitably opened their home to the Delta Gamma Society and friends. The grounds were illuminated by Chinese lanterns, while a profusion of flowers adorned the parlors and hall. The evening was spent in conversation, games, music, etc. Frank Sigler, accompanied by his sister, Miss Lillian, favored the guests with a charming flute solo. Dainty bonbons and tiny silver pencils were the souvenirs. The bonbons, when opened, were found to contain grotesque, colored caps which caused much amusement, especially when they were donned by the recipients. At a late hour refreshments were served, after which the guests dispersed, well pleased with the evening so delightfully spent.

The following are the Delta Gammas and invited guests: Misses Lillie Sigler, Josephine Macley, Maude Woodport, M. Arnold, Virgie Williamson, Lillian Williamson, Adella Tucker, B. Rose, F. Whitlock, Martin, Mann, Susie Breese, Grace Bradley, Belle Townsend, Stella Lashlee, Sterling, Helen Dyer, Mesdames Griswold, Greenwood and Guildin; Messrs. Clinton, Bradley, Samuel Macley, Frank Sigler, Caswell, T. W. Robinson, H. Shaw, L. K. Garrett, David Arnold, Don Porter, R. H. Hall, T. Warren, E. Chapin, Melville Breese, Charles Martin, Dr. E. R. Bradley, Prof. Boynton and Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Whitcomb of Glendora, Prof. and Mrs. N. G. Felker, Dr. and Mrs. F. Parker, Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Matthews.

WOODEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Y. Bard celebrated the fifth anniversary of their marriage at their home, No. 109 Leconteur street, last Wednesday evening. Invitations appropriate to the occasion had been sent out about ten days previous, and all responded by being present, or sending their regrets with some useful present.

Mrs. G. W. Aylsworth, in behalf of their West Side friends, presented the couple with two elegant chairs, accompanied by a neat little speech conveying the best wishes and hearty congratulations of the donors.

SOCIETY BUDS ENTERTAINED.

Miss Bertha Jenkins entertained in her usually charming manner, last Friday evening, a few of her most intimate friends. The evening was spent in dancing and games, and at a late hour refreshments were served.

Among those present were Misses Genevieve Smith, Pauline Cornwell, Leah Bletso, Clara Rawson, Minnie Stevens, Bertha Jenkins; Messrs. Charlie Pepper, Rob Randall, Sam Hasson, John Alden, Woodson Hundley and Byron Fields.

PARTY ON SANVEE STREET.

One of the most enjoyable parties of the week was given at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Russell, 1254 Santee street, last Friday evening. The house was handsomely decorated with smilax and choice flowers, and the guests were entertained by sweet strains of music from Prof. Arevalo's guitar and some well-rendered piano solos by Mrs. Urquiza and Miss Swint. Misses Helen and Bertha Roth sang some beautiful Spanish duets in their usual charming style, and a vocal duet by E. de Celis and Prof. Arevalo was much enjoyed. Dancing followed, after which the guests sat down to an elaborate supper.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Urquiza, Mr. and Mrs. B. Roth, Mrs. Benchly, Misses May and Gertrude Russell, Benchly, Wagner, Jennie Henderson, Rita de Celis; Messrs. E. and J. M. de Celis, J. A. Bleakman, A. Roth, Mr. and Mrs. Hatton, Dr. and Mrs. Moore, Mrs. Campbell, the Misses Roth, Mr. and Mrs. Beatty, Messrs. Day, George Gregg, Fred B. Henderson, Master Hugh Russell.

SACRAMENTO LADIES HONORED.

One of the most enjoyable events of the season was a reception given in honor of Mrs. Jones and Miss Daisy Christopher of Sacramento at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. Gary of No. 552 Banning street, on last Wednesday evening. The parlors were beautifully and artistically decorated with chrysanthemums and smilax, and the evening was delightfully passed. An elaborate and sumptuous repast was served, after which music and dancing were indulged in until a late hour, when the guests said a reluctant good night.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. C. I. Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. D. Cunningham, Misses M. H. Harney, S. Jones, F. Wandus and Alexander; Misses Nannie and Nettie Ramsey, D. Mundell, F. Caruthers, L. Talbot and B. W. Gary; Messrs. W. Jones of Pomona, E. R. Pruitt of San Francisco, W. H. Barker, W. H. Reynolds, R. F. Pointer, H. Perkins, Master Willie Harney, and others.

A NEVADA REUNION.

Ex-United States Minister George W. Merrill and Mrs. Merrill, assisted by Mrs. Slusher, a sister of the hostess, and her niece, Miss Slusher, very cordially entertained a number of their friends on Friday evening last, at their pleasant home in Barnard Park. The occasion might appropriately be termed a Nevada reunion, as the company was largely composed of some of their many friends and acquaintances of the Silver State, now residents of this city. Light refreshments were served, while social enjoyment was characterized by the evening, and many diversified and amusing experiences of former days were revived.

MUSICAL AT THE ST. ANGELO.

The guests of the St. Angelo were treated to an impromptu musicale last Friday evening. J. H. Brenner, the Los Angeles Strauss, was present and assisted with characteristic piano compositions and violin obligatos. Mr. and Mrs. Schutte and daughter of Amsterdam, Holland, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Hoffman. Mrs. Schutte, who has a most charming voice, delighted her listeners with several German and Italian songs. The rest of the programme was made up of selections by J. W. Payne, A. P. Hoffman and the Misses Smith.

SIX LITTLE MAIDS ENTERTAINED.

Half a dozen little maidens were made very happy yesterday afternoon at a party given them by their Sunday-school teacher, Mrs. F. E. Olds, at her cozy cottage, on West Twenty-fourth street. The hours named were from 2 to 5, and the little folks were entertained by target-shooting on the lawn, a bean hunt in the parlors and music. Miss Effie Shafer received the pretty Kate Greenaway doll as a reward for accurate aim in shooting and Miss Mary Weidner, who found fifty-one out of two hundred hidden beans, was made the happy owner of a wonderful Japanese rooster who flapped his wings in the most real fashion when she pulled a cord.

At 5 o'clock the following merry little maids said good-night to their charming hostess and her mother, Mrs. H. A. Birdsell, who had assisted in entertaining them: Misses Ruth Beckwith, Olive Vail, Effie Shafer, Adaline Stanton, Mary Weidner and Edith Buswell.

CONCORDIA CLUB BALL.

One of the most magnificent balls of the season occurred last evening at the Concordia Club rooms on South Main street, which was attended by about seventy-five members of the club and their ladies. A canvas awning was stretched over the pavement leading to the entrance; the stairs and halls were crashed, the balustrade twined with ivy, and the long hall from which the elegantly appointed rooms opened, lined with potted palms. The large ball-room with its smoothly waxed floor presented a scene of great brilliancy, as the throng of beautifully dressed women and gallant attendants whirled through the mazy waltz to the strains of an orchestra concealed behind an alcove of palms in one corner of the hall. On the opposite side was a string band which discoursed promenade music between the dance numbers. Ropes of smilax, starred with chrysanthemums, stretched from the two central chandeliers to the four corners of the room, and great balls of chrysanthemums, in solid colors, swung from the ceiling. The word "Concordia" in white blossoms was arched against the wall and pillars, doorways and windows were wreathed with smilax and the favorite rose of Japan. The billiard and smoking rooms, private parlors and reception rooms were all lavishly decorated.

An elegant supper was served by Solomon in the long double dining-room. The banquet tables were a glitter with crystal and silver and great clusters of maiden-hair ferns rose from a mound of chrysanthemums in the center of each table. Balls of the same flowers swung from the smilax-twined chandeliers. It was long past midnight ere the last note of music died away, and the gay revellers sought their homes.

The directors of the affair were the club officers, L. Loebe, H. Baruch, J. E. Waldeck, M. H. Newmark and the following gentlemen: Messrs. J. Kohn, J. S. Salovey, W. Frank, R. A. Schell, H. W. Louis, M. Langstatter, P. Newmark, A. Fleishman, L. Nordinger, E. Weinberg, C. Seligman and H. C. Weiner.

COMING EVENTS.

Mrs. Walter S. Moore has issued invitations to a dancing party next Thursday evening.

The marriage of Winston Henry Obeas of this city to Miss Anne Baggey of Sacramento is announced for the 19th of this month. The bride-to-be possesses beauty and wealth and the couple will receive a warm welcome here, where the groom is well known and where they will reside.

Next Wednesday evening the Harmony Star Orchestra will celebrate their dedication by giving a splendid musical and literary entertainment and candy, cake and popcorn social.

Among those who will assist in the programme are Messrs. R. F. Sollee, Wilans and Prof. W. Carter. Court Los Angeles, No. 422, I. O. F., will give an entertainment and social dance at McDonald Hall, No. 127 North Main street, on Thursday evening. The following well-known talent will assist in the programme: Miss Viola Bennett, Miss S. Farr, Miss Meserly, Prof. Stoll, Tom Barnes, Mr. Meserly, Robbie Burns, Laura and Oscar Cotton, C. N. McElfresh and other prominent officers. All Forrester and their friends are cordially invited.

AN INFORMAL TEA.

Miss Forman entertained a few friends at an informal tea yesterday afternoon. The rooms and table were bright with chrysanthemums, which seems to be the favorite blossom just now. Those present were: Mrs. Forman, Miss Forman, Mrs. Emilie Moffatt, Mrs. George Stecker, L. C. Sheller, F. W. Blanchard, L. F. Scott, Misses Morford, Wolters, Foy, McConnell, Russell, Houghton, Burnett, Chapin, Mullen, Rose, Wilson, Workman, Dupuy, King, Dewey, Shorb, Riley and Dedsworth.

NOTES AND PERSONALS.

W. A. Anderson of Riverside has apartments at the Ardmore.

Rev. Arthur P. Brown of The Palms is a guest at the St. Angelo.

Mrs. Cora D. Shoop of Richmond, Mo., is the winner for the winter.

Louis E. Vetter of the firm of Dobinson & Vetter is registered at the St. Angelo.

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Hoffman and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Devan are again at the St. Angelo for the winter.

Dr. F. Walton Todd is making a flying trip to New Orleans, after which he will be at the St. Angelo to pass his second winter.

Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Taylor have just returned from their Northern trip to Portland and Tacoma, and are at home at No. 127 East Thirtieth street.

Miss Edna French, youngest daughter of Dr. and Mrs. French of West Third street, has just returned from a year's absence in Colorado and Salt Lake City.

Miss Rose Murphy of Terre Haute, Ind.; Dr. and Mrs. F. L. Mathews of Springfield, Ill., and Lewis R. Works of Chicago, are recent arrivals at the St. Angelo.

Mrs. F. E. Olds, the accomplished bicyclist, now spins down Broadway on a new Columbia, full nicker, cushion tired wheel, the only ladies' bicycle of this elegant style in the city.

Miss Mather Johnston was tendered a surprise party last Friday evening at her home on Orange street, by a company of young people from the West End. Music, games and refreshments entertained the guests most pleasantly.

At St. Hilda's Hall the fine tennis court has just been put in perfect order. The club has among its members some very fine players, and everything is done en regle, even to forming a mock court and bringing to trial any member who ventures to step into the court without tennis shoes.

Miss Monks, the teacher of zoology at the Normal school, chaperoned a class of thirty students on a zoological expedition to San Pedro yesterday. The party visited Dead Man's Island, lunched by the sad sea waves, and returned home at night laden with star fish, clams, crabs and other sea monsters.

Last Thursday evening the Angelina Circle and friends enjoyed themselves in a novel manner at a basket social. Some amusing incidents occurred in disposing of the baskets, the ladies displaying some anxiety as to who would be their partners for the evening. After a short programme the affair closed with a social hop.

NEW FEATURES AT THE WAXWORKS.

The final performance of Cleopatra

last night was a brilliant affair and afforded a fitting close to a phenomenal successful engagement. When it was first announced that the Davenport McDowell combination intended to give but one play, and that for six successive performances at raised prices, it was only a few sanguine people who predicted anything better than a very moderate financial return. The fact is, however, that the attraction has played to constantly increasing business, and the matinee receipts of yesterday are stated as being the largest of any matinee since the house was built. The total receipts are said to considerably exceed $7000 which is, it will be conceded, a large amount of money for our public to disburse on a single production. This circumstance is another confirmation of the fact often urged in these columns, that Los Angeles is always ready to patronize handsomely any attraction that comes along provided the management will furnish an entertainment worth the price charged for admission. There have been quite a number of very inferior shows visiting our city during the past six months, and in every case the management would have departed uttering strong language, in which our public has been condemned for its lack of appreciation, and the newspapers have been vilified for refusing to assist in the little game of obtaining money under false pretenses. Nothing better could have happened at this time, however, than the success of the failure of these poor shows than the emphatic financial success of a worthy attraction, the managers of which carried out their promises to the public to the letter.

Few people know how nearly we came to losing altogether the sight of the gorgeous spectacle that has delighted thousands during the past week. A fire of one inch in the depth of the Grand Opera house would have rendered it impossible to set the magnificent scene showing the valley of the Nile overlooking which Cleopatra watches from the walls of Memphis for news of Antony's return. The panorama of the Nile was shown on a continuous canvas embracing the sides as well as the back of the stage, and were in a grooved framework which fitted snugly as to occupy the entire space. The Davenport management was anxious to cancel the date here, and would have been able to do so if the scenery had proved too large for the stage.

Mr. Potter of Texas is the next attraction booked for the Grand Operahouse and will be given there on the nights of December 7, 8 and 9. In the interval the renovation and improvement of the house is to be pushed to completion. The floor will be laid in the lobby and the system of electric lighting, which has been so great an improvement to the house, will be completed. The new hangings will be put in place and when the gentleman from Texas makes his bow it is expected that it will be in a finished house as well as to a pleased audience.

Several complaints have been made that when the incandescent lights on the boxes and round the proscenium are left burning during the performance, their glare has the effect of making the stage picture dark. The first two acts of Cleopatra were marred in their scenic effect in this way. The new system of lighting will require careful study to make it work to complete satisfaction.

Manager Wyatt will open his Los Angeles Theater tonight with a farce entitled Shipped by the Light of the Moon, which is booked for three nights. The piece was seen here about four years ago, when by the help of those among the comedians, Harrison and Goulet, it provoked a great deal of laughter. It is one of those well-known productions which have no foundation, or claim to be considered critically, and the popular success of which depends entirely upon the "variety" abilities of the performers engaged. In the present instance the people include Charles J. Hagan, Thomas Martin, John C. Leach, James F. Righe, Lido Wells, Dolly Thornton and Alfa Perry.

San Francisco Music and Drama, with its usual vigor and outspoken directness hits the nail squarely on the head in a little editorial upon the subject of "indecent Posters" in which it says:

Every right-minded person having at heart the best interests of the amusement world can but feel regret at the suppression in the East, and some portions of the West, of the indecent wall-paper fared before the public gaze by a class of low-down managers of questionable shows. That in some cases the suppression has been carried to ridiculous lengths we will admit; but, on the whole, the new dispensation has been salutary. Most of the shows using the degrading pictures are not half so bad as they are represented to be; but they are bad enough at the best. Already they find their field restricted, and it will be just as well when the time comes when the nasty manager and his suggestive printing are both out of sight.

The Columbia Opera Company will open at the Los Angeles Theater on Wednesday next, and during the week will produce Il Trovatore, Faust, Martha, and the new opera by Mascagni, Cavalleria Rusticana. Mlle. Nina Bertini, Mme. Garso-Dely, Olga Essler, Wilhelm Forstner, Josef Reibo, David Alexander, and others less known to fame, comprise a company of which much may be expected, for much is promised. Garso-Dely is announced as from the Stadt Theater, Hamburg, and Josef Reibo from the Court Theater, Hanover. Nina Bertini alternated last season at the Grand Operahouse, New York. The sale of seats opens tomorrow morning.

A couple of rooms in the Los Angeles Theater building have been furnished and fitted by Manager Wyatt for the convenience of press agents, managers and people who have any interest in the drama. They are intended to serve as headquarters where correspondence may be written, business interviews had and the dramatic papers read. Such conveniences will be regarded as a great boon by those for whose benefit they are intended.

Mr. McKee Rankin is announced to appear at the Los Angeles Theater Nov. 26-28 in his new play The Canuck in which he has a strong dialect part.

Julia Arthur has been engaged by A. M. Palmer as leading lady of his stock company for next season. The sudden rise of this young lady has been phenomenal. She will be remembered in San Francisco for her work in The Still Alarm, which was not remarkable, however. But at the beginning of this season she appeared in New York in The Black Masque. The play was a failure, but the morning after the first performance Miss Arthur awoke to find herself famous, and now she is said to be one of the most remarkable actresses of the day.—[San Francisco Music and Drama.]

NOTES.

Robert Mantell has been doing a tremendous business at St. Louis lately.

Gossip has it about town that Lotta Crabtree has married Douglass Shirley of Louisville, Ky.

Charles Frohman has accepted a new play by Jerome K. Jerome, called The Counsellor's Wife.

Roland Reed and Daniel Sully are among the stars announced to appear at the Los Angeles Theater in the near future.

Richard Golden has retired to Dwight, Ill. for treatment by Dr. Keeley. Old Jed will probably also be laid up for repairs.

Pietro Mascagni, the composer of Cavalleria Rusticana, produced his new opera, Amico Fritz at Rome, Italy, Oct. 30. It made a great success; the audience manifested enormous enthusiasm.

Robert Graham will not produce his new musical comedy, which he calls Harry the Lord, this season. It has been read by several managers, and all have refused it "with thanks." It is said to be the queerest play ever written and the funniest music ever made.

At the San Francisco theatres during the week commencing Monday, November 16: Madame Cartouche will be presented at the Tivoli Operahouse; Miss Vokes' Company will play Cavalleria Rusticana, Wig and Gown and The United States; McKee Rankin will play in The Canuck; Gus Heege in Yon Yonson; and Woman Against Woman will be revived.

Orange and Lemon Lands

At Redlands, Mentone and Barton Ranch. Only 10 per cent cash down; no further payment for 6 and 10 years.

Over 400,000 worth of this class of land has been sold by the undersigned in Mentone and Redlands in the past two years in 10 and 20-acre tracts, and ALL to settlers, most of which is now planted and has handsome residences thereon.

The demand for land at MENTONE has increased very materially since last winter on account of not having any from there to insure the most delicate shoot on the orange tree.

The demand will be greater now than ever before for the reason that the recent storms did not do one dollar's damage.

The formation of the mountains around MENTONE is such that it is almost entirely free from the north and east winds, it being about 2,000 feet above sea level, and about 50 miles from the ocean, the fogs do not drift in. The air is cool in summer and warm and dry in winter.

The budded orange tree, strawberry, guava, apricot, peach and fig, bear fruit at MENTONE first year after planting. The olives grown on three-year-old trees received first premium at the State Citrus Fair this year.

Location.

Mentone is the highest station on the Santa Fe Belt R. R., 11 miles from San Bernardino, only 3 miles east of the business center of Redlands. The Motor line and Southern Pacific are now preparing to extend their roads to Mentone; they are within three miles of the place at present.

The oranges, lemons, olives and all other fruits grown at MENTONE and vicinity are the best and highest priced in the market, as there is no black smut, no scale bug or fruit pests of any kind. There are orange, lemon and all other kinds of fruit trees and vines there more than 20 years old. Some of the orange trees bearing 15 boxes to the tree, and some of the lemons 20 boxes.

The prettiest Hotel in Southern California is now being built at MENTONE. It will be lighted with incandescent lights.

Chance for Contract Work.

Any settler at MENTONE will have the privilege of paying one-fourth the price of his land in contract work or team work by the day, provided he has an agreement to that effect in writing at time of purchase.

Barley Land Free of Charge.

The Mentone Company will furnish settlers first-class Barley Land on which to raise grain, free of charge.

Description and Prices of a Few of the Cheapest Pieces.

16 acres of choice fruits, all in bearing, in the city of Redlands, and only one mile from railroad station on Santa Fe line; house, barn, cemented reservoir at highest corner, about 100 feet square; clear stream of water along one side about 150 feet, and lined with beautiful shade trees; fruits consist of 232 orange trees, 685 peach trees, 103 apricot trees, 140 nectarines, 11 lemons, 19 apples, 7 figs, 3 walnuts, 9 pears, all in bearing; besides 129 young orange trees and a nursery of 300 orange trees. Price $8000; terms $200 cash, balance in annual payments.

3 of the best 10-acre pieces on the Barton Ranch, only one mile from the center of the City of Redlands, $3000 each; only 10 per cent cash; no further payment for 10 years; interest 6 per cent, per annum.

10 acres, all planted, with house, barn and other improvements, $5000.

10 acres on the principal residence street of Redlands; house worth $3000; land all in fine budded orange trees; price, $2000.

10 acres adjoining Mentone, fine spring of water on the highest portion of it; a few hundred will develop enough water to irrigate two-thirds of it, all of which is excellent orange and olive land; 30 acres of it was planted to wheat last season; the piece can be divided into several nice homes. Price, only $400 per acre.

35 acres at Mentone, 5 of which is in fine budded orange trees; only $250 per acre. The naked land is worth more than $200 per acre.

Town Property.

Notice of Award of Contract

PURSUANT TO STATUTES AND TO the resolution of award of the city council of the city of Los Angeles, passed November 9, 1901, directing this notice, notice is hereby given that the said city engineer, in open session, on or about November 1901, opened, examined and publicly declared all sealed proposals or bids for the construction of the following:

1st. That said Twenty-eighth street in said city, from the westerly line of Main street to the eastern line of Grand avenue, including all intersections of streets and portions of said street and intersections as are required by law to be kept in order and repaired by the city, and company having railroad tracks thereon, and also accepting such portions as are not required to be kept in order and accepted be graded and graveled in accordance with the plans and specifications in the office of the city clerk, said city of Los Angeles, for making graveled sidewalks, said specifications being numbered 12.

2d. That a cement curb be constructed along the line of roadway of said Twenty-eighth street from the westerly line of Main street to the easterly line of Grand avenue (excepting along such portions in front of which a cement or granite curb has already been constructed) in accordance with the plans and specifications in the office of the city clerk, said city of Los Angeles, for making graveled sidewalks being numbered 12.

3d. That a cement sidewalk five feet wide be constructed along the westerly line of Main street to the easterly line of Grand avenue (excepting along such portions in front of which a sidewalk has already been constructed) along which a cement or asphalt sidewalk has been constructed and accepted, in accordance with the plans and specifications in the office of the city clerk, said specifications being numbered 12.

4th. That a sewer be constructed along said Twenty-eighth street from a point 135 feet west of the West line of Main street to the intersection of Main street at the intersection of Grand avenue and Twenty-eighth street, together with all appurtenances, including manholes, catch-banks; said sewer to be eight inches in internal diameter and to be constructed of vitrified pipe, laid in a true line, and all of which shall be constructed in accordance with the plans and specifications and profile on file in the office of the city engineer, said specifications being numbered 12.

SEC. 2. The city engineer having estimated that the total cost of said improvement will be $10,000, he has set apart $10,000, from a fund along each line of said street, including the cost of intersections, it is hereby determined, in pursuance of an act of the Legislature of the State of California, approved March 17th, 1891, that bonds shall be issued to represent the cost of said improvement. Said bonds shall be serial, extending over a period of ten years, an even proportion of which shall be payable annually on the first day of January of each year after their date until the whole are paid, and to bear interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually on the first days of January and each year after their date are paid, and to bear interest

July of each and every year.

And thereafter, to wit: On the 8th day of November, 1961, awarded the contract for sewer work to the lowest regular responsible bidder, to wit: To J. T. Davis at the prices named for said work in his proposal on file, to wit: Grading, $1.75 per linear foot; curb, 40c per linear foot; sewer, 90c per linear foot; shiftable wall square foot; and that the said award has been approved by the mayor.

ABOUT SAN JACINTO.

Where will be the New Great Garden Spot.

An Ample Supply of Water for Irrigation

To be Supplied by the Highest Dam in the World.

How the Dam is Being Made and Where Winter Water to be Stored for Summer Use.

Away up in the San Jacinto Mountains, far removed from the range of everyday observation, there is in progress of completion an enterprise that is destined to effect a wonderful transformation in the beautiful valley lying at their base. The way thither is one full of attractions to the traveler who will revel in the pleasures of the journey which amply recompense the labor of the mountain climb. From the town of San Jacinto, the terminal point of a branch of the Southern California Railroad, an excellent wagon-road leads up the valley into the cañon and over the divide until an altitude of 4800 feet above sea level is reached, when a descent of 600 feet is made into the Hemet Valley.

It is at the lower end of this basin that the Lake Hemet Water Company is constructing the highest dam in the world to form a great storage reservoir, which shall make it possible to irrigate nearly the whole of San Jacinto Valley. The Hemet Valley at its western end narrows down to a cañon less than seventy-five feet wide, with solid granite walls reaching a height of nearly 160 feet. Through this narrow pass ordinarily flows a little brook known as the south fork of the San Jacinto River, and it is here that the great dam is being constructed.

Upon our arrival at the camp we found a busy scene before us. A veritable village of wooden houses is required for the purposes of the work. There are cottages for families, boarding-house, lodging-house, barns, warehouses, shops, engine-houses, saw mill and various other structures more or less pretentious. More than 100 men are employed here in the work of building the dam which, as we look down upon it from the edge of the precipice, seems hardly to have started on its upward growth, though the top layer of the great wall is already fifty-five feet above the foundation.

The preparatory step in this work was to clear a place in the mass of huge granite boulders, which partially filled the cañon, and to make an excavation fifteen and a half feet beneath the bed of the stream to reach bed rock. This hole was then filled with granite, cement and concrete. Upon this foundation, which was so made as to effectually prevent any possibility of penetration by water, was raised the granite pile. The dam is ninety-five feet thick at its base, which exceeds its length at a height of fifty feet. To give it greater strength it is made curved, with the convex side toward the reservoir, and the ends fitted into the irregular granite sides of the cañon. The convex side of the dam will rise in nearly a vertical line, and the other, which could be called the lower side, will so slope that the dam, at a height of 150 feet, will be ten feet thick, upon this it is proposed to build an additional wall ten feet higher, making the total height of the dam 160 feet.

To withstand the great force which will bear against it when the reservoir is filled with water, the dam is being constructed in the most substantial manner known to engineering skill. The face wall, which will be next the water, is made ten feet thick and the opposite wall is five feet thick, formed of granite blocks, laid with cement mortar. Between these outer walls the space is filled with the same kind of stone, the interstices being packed with smaller pieces and concrete, the whole so made as to form a solid mass. It is slow work, the present rate of its upward growth being about seven feet a month, and a full year's time will be required for completing it. As the dam progresses upward its length will increase. At the 125 feet level it will be 230 feet long and contain 26,000 cubic yards of stone. When it attains its full height these dimensions will be greatly augmented by the auxiliary or extension dams which will be required.

The methods used in carrying out the construction work are extremely interesting. The general manager of the company, Col. E. L. Mayberry, energetically oversees the whole, and it was his inventive brain that devised all the many ingenious machines and appliances which serve their purposes so admirably in saving time, labor and expense. Four engines and one water power are required for handling the material used, all except the water power being on the summit of the bluff.

Three wire cables an inch and a half thick are stretched through the cañon over the dam, and on these run carriages with block and tackle, all controlled by the men who preside over the engines. These carriages take up stones weighing many tons, carry them through mid-air fifty feet above the bed of the stream to the dam where the derricks take them and put them in place. A boy in a lookout shed perched up on the side of the bluff has telegraphic communication with all the engine houses, and all movements of the hoisting machinery are controlled by his signals.

No less than thirty-five barrels of Portland cement are used daily in making the mortar and concrete. These materials are mixed in an ingeniously arranged house, which stands 125 feet above the bottom of the cañon. Fragments of granite are hauled by wagon to the top of the mixing-house and dumped into the stone-crusher, whence the finer particles fall to the floor below, are mixed with cement and sand, hauled by a dump-car over a high trestle and sent down a chute to the masons below. The sand required is elevated by an arrangement of iron buckets on endless wire belt, which extends from the mixer to a hopper 400 feet distant and 125 feet below. Gravity is utilized as much as possible, and much of the mechanical work done is automatic. The ingenuity shown in taking advantage of every favorable condition is remarkable. Stone exists in vast quantities all around the site of the dam, all the lumber and timber are sawed on the ground, and sand is caught by a specially constructed dam. These, with the imported cement, are the principal items used in the work.

Back of this dam, when completed to the 160-foot level, is expected to form a reservoir extending two and a half miles in length and three-quarters of a mile in greatest width. It will hold about 11,500,000,000 gallons of water, or about twice as much as the Sweetwater dam, which, according to the figures given by J. D. Schuyler, the consulting engineer, would flow 4900 miners' inches for 180 days. The water for filling this great lake will be caught during the rainy season in a water shed of about 100 square miles, and the evaporation is expected to be compensated by the inflow of the little stream, which is perennial.

From this great reservoir the water will be turned off as required through three twenty-four-inch and one eleven inch pipe. The water will then flow, as it does now, through the cañon for about twelve miles to a receiving reservoir, and after it passes through the sand house, where nearly all sediment is caught by an arrangement of tanks, it flows by pipe lines and ditches to the distributing reservoir a short distance from and 800 feet above San Jacinto. This reservoir has a capacity of 30,- 000,000 gallons and covers, when full, ten acres.

This is on the ranch of 7000 acres owned by the Hemet Land Company, now principally devoted to the raising of grain, 25,000 bags having been produced this year.

When all this promised water is available the valley of the San Jacinto will be converted into one great fruit orchard and garden. It is said that the new dam will put fully 60,000 acres under irrigation, which will be a considerable increase to the fertile lands of the valley. We saw about San Jacinto two-year-old orange groves that were as fine as can be found anywhere for their age, and it is asserted that with a sufficiency of water the soil will be admirably adapted to the raising of all kinds of fruits. The ranch of the Hemet Land Company will be cut up into small tracts and be converted into orchards, and general prosperity will smile on as pretty a valley as exists in the world.

SANTA ANA SENSATION.

The Disappearance of a Prominent Young Attorney.

The Presentation of a Bill for a Piano Brings Out the Fact That There Is a Story Behind the Case.

Several months ago a dashing young lawyer of Santa Ana, named G. O. Cadman, took a trip East and returned with a young bride. Mrs. Cadman was said to be quite wealthy, and after she had been in town a few days she fitted up a home and purchased a lot of furniture in this city, among which was a fine piano. She also deposited quite a sum of money in the Santa Ana bank, but she gave her husband full power to draw, and instructed him to pay for the piano.

A few days ago a collector called on Mrs. Cadman, in her Santa Ana home, and presented a bill for the piano. The lady was greatly astonished on learning that the bill had not been paid.

It then leaked out that the lawyer had been missing for several days, but his young wife had no suspicions, as she thought her husband was off on business.

As the story goes, an investigation was started and it was discovered that Cadman had drawn all his wife's money from the bank and had disappeared.

It is a mystery as to why Cadman disappeared so mysteriously, and as his wife has absolutely refused to talk on the subject the chances are that it will be some time before the affair is cleared up. When the Los Angeles piano house collector called on Mrs. Cadman she stated that she could easily get money to pay for the piano by telegraphing home, but she did not care to have her friends in the East know that she had been deceived by her husband so soon after their marriage.

On this statement the piano was moved back to Los Angeles and the firm is out the cost.

It is understood that young Cadman's father, who resides in Santa Ana, is quite wealthy. The family took up their residence in that city about a year and a half ago, and are highly respected.

The Times' Santa Ana correspondent called on Mrs. Cadman to learn the particulars of the affair, but the lady refused to say anything about the matter, beyond the fact that her husband was absent in the East. She declined to say whether her husband was absent on business or on a pleasure trip; in fact, was very not-committal on the subject.

There has been a good deal of quiet talk at Santa Ana over Cadman's sudden departure, but nothing is known as to the cause of it, as the relatives and friends of the parties interested positively refuse to say a word about it.

MRS. GRAHAM'S Cucumber and Elder Flower Cream

Is not a cosmetic in the sense in which that term is popularly used, but permanently beautifies. It creates a soft, smooth, clear, velvety skin, and by daily use gradually makes the complexion several shades whiter. It is a constant protection from the effects of sun and wind and prevents sunburn and freckles, and blackheads will never come while you use it. It cleanses the face far better than soap and water, nourishes and builds up the skin tissues, and thus prevents the formation of wrinkles. It gives the freshness, smoothness and clearness of skin that you had when a little girl. Every lady, young or old, ought to use it, as it gives a more youthful appearance to any lady, and that permanently. It contains no acid, powder or alkali, and is as harmless as dew and as nourishing to the skin as the dew is to the flower.

WONDERFUL CURES MADE BY DR. WONG

During the Seven Years that He Has Been Located in Los Angeles, California.

Three months ago my daughter was taken sick, bloated terribly, limbs became cold and finally she lost consciousness and one side became paralyzed and she was given up to die. Dr. Wong's medicine restored her to perfect health.

MRS. MARY SCULLY, 509 Gallardo St., Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 1, 1890

Six years ago my son was very sick. I employed three different doctors for three weeks, but none of them afforded any relief, nor could they tell me the kind of disease my son was afflicted with. When it was evident my son couldn't live Dr. Wong examined him and said that he was suffering from one of the 31 forms of stomach diseases. Dr. Wong's medicine relieved him at once and effected a permanent cure in a few days' time and he has never been sick or taken any medicine since taking Dr. Wong's medicine.

J. D. STEHLER, 135 S. Workman St., Los Angeles, Cal. Oct. 29, 1890

After I had suffered severely from blood poisoning and had failed to get relief from other doctors I took medicine from Dr. Wong and was completely cured in two months' time. I consider Dr. Wong the most able physician that I have ever known of in forty years' observation and experience.

J. D. STEHLER, 237 S. Main St., Los Angeles, Cal. Nov. 1, 1890

Two months ago my wife took medicine of Dr. Wong for bronchitis and asthma, now she is in the best of health and is enjoying life. For fifteen years she suffered and during that time I employed five different physicians and paid them hundreds of dollars, but none of them ever benefited her in the least. All the doctors advised me to move to another climate as the only thing that would ever afford her relief.

WM. H. PENDLETON, Jr., Downey, Los Angeles, Cal. Nov. 1, 1890

DR. WONG has cured over 3000 people who were afflicted with nearly every form of the various diseases of the human flesh he is heir to. Fully 92 per cent of these cures were made of wrecks that could not find relief in the other system of medicine as practiced in America and Europe.

In Dr. Wong's system of medicine there are 401 different diseases, and he cures 87 of them, including 8 of the brain, 12 of the eye, 2 of the ear, 12 of the throat, 8 forms of asthma, 7 forms of cough, 15 forms of heart disease, 3 forms of liver disease, 20 forms of spleen disease, 12 forms of skin disease, 10 of the 12 kinds of cancer, 6 of the 7 kinds of tumors, 15 of rheumatism, 25 of the 30 forms of consumption, 6 of blood diseases.

There are also over 3000 kinds of medicine (all herbs no poisons) which he imports directly, and which have been used in China 5000 to 6000 years.

Dr. Wong loses no diseases by the pulse, without asking a question. CONSULTATION FREE.
